DEDICATION

To the memory of those Andover men who gave their lives that the ideals of schools like ours might live, this POT POURRI is inevitably and humbly dedicated.

FOREWORD

Our conception of a YEARBOOK is that it should be an accurate and interesting account of the highlights of the school year. Realizing that we cannot cover everything, we have attempted to select those details necessary to present a reasonably complete picture of Andover life. The job has not been easy, but our efforts will be fully rewarded if this book serves as a reminder, in future years, of this wonderful and all-important period of our lives.

JUNIOR YEAR

'Way back in the Fall of 1942, the class of 1946 had its humble beginnings, when about one hundred and seventy-five young boys, most of them mere infants of thirteen or fourteen, took up residence in Williams Hall and Rockwell. That first year was a confused one, not only because of the numerous little events in our school life, but also because so much was happening in the outside world of war.

The year got off to a none-too-popular start at Will Hall when we were asked to "do our bit" by waiting on table. This minor irritation was soon forgotten as new interests appeared. For the first two or three nights, we were besieged by canvassers selling everything from laundry contracts to permits for the use of our own radiators.

Our interest was next turned to the truly great football team led by Dick Duden, which went through a season of seven victories and only one loss, climaxed by a 12-0 win over Exeter. Even then, there were some of our classmates, Rick Hudner, Charlie Smith, Jack Lynch, and Norm Nourse, who showed promise on the football field. Rockwell won the annual football game with Will Hall by a somewhat lopsided score of 19-0.

Later on in the Fall Term, the whole school was shocked by the now-famed Coconut Grove fire, in which two P. A. alumni lost their lives.

When we returned from Christmas Vacation, the war seemed even closer to us than it had been in the Fall. Food shortages led to endless complaints, but blackouts and practice air raids were something to look forward to as an opportunity for inter-floor pillow or water fights. That Winter we downed the Red and Gray in basketball, hockey, and swimming. Some of our Friday nights were spent in George Washington Hall listening to such attractions as the Don Cossack Choir, Norman Thomas, or Stuart Chase.

The Spring Term is to be remembered mainly for the small quantity of work we did and the large quantity of general fooling. In the middle of the term, we elected Charlie Smith and Art Gallagher to represent us on the Student Council. The Spring ended on a glorious note when we downed Exeter in baseball, 7-0.

The year had been a successful one for most of us and we left in the spring knowing that next year we would assume those grave Lower Middler responsibilities.

ARTHUR C. GALLAGHER

Andover seemed a little different to most of us upon our return in our Lower Year. We were split up into the many Lower dorms, away from the strict proctoring of Rockwell and Williams Halls. We felt a greater responsibility, and P.A. had become a large part of our lives by that time.

That Fall, we watched Capt. Jim Hudner's football team play through a better-than-average season, only to lose to an underdog Red and Gray eleven, 12-6. Two of our own classmates, Charlie Smith and O. J. Anderson were big factors in the success of the team, playing left-half and right tackle, respectively.

We returned to the Hill for a short but cold Winter Term after a much-needed three-week Christmas vacation. By that time, a big rivalry had arisen between the men in the cottages and those from the house dormitories. This rivalry resulted in many a spirited snowball fight during the term and an occasional dumped bed. The Winter Term was climaxed by athletic victories over the New Hampshiremen in basketball, hockey, and track. Andover added another victory in the combined school War Bond Drive jointly sponsored by the Phillipian and the Exonian. The two schools raised an aggregate of over $42,000. These victories and the Winter Prom, the first one for many of us, ended our second Winter as Andover men.

The Spring Term, always the best, proved to be full of important events, and June was upon us in no time. Midway in the term, the Glee Club combined with the Abbot Fidelio Society to give Gilbert & Sullivan's Pirates of Penzance to an enthusiastic and appreciative Andover audience. Athletically, we had good reason to be proud of our own Skippy Paradise when he won two firsts in the A-E track meet, and we were just as proud the following Saturday, when Charlie Smith pitched Artie Moher's baseball team to a brilliant 3-2 victory. To end the term we elected Rick Hudner, Don Lazo, and O. J. Anderson to represent us on the Student Council the next year.

With D-day in Normandy coming the last week of that school year, we all went home with a more serious attitude about school and the country, determined to make next year even more profitable for us and for our purpose at Andover.

J.K.W.

LOWER YEAR

UPPER YEAR

Little did we know, as we came back in the Fall of 1944 fully aware of our responsibilities as Uppers, that we were entering one of the most eventful years in the history of the school. We found Charlie Smith and O. J. Anderson already here for early football practice on Captain Ed Mead's team. Our gripes about food shortages were somewhat quieted as we noticed sixty-five gold stars on the alumni flag. The annual operetta with Abbot was cancelled and Iolanthe was postponed until next Fall as Punchard was unwilling to do it with us.

There was a great deal of tension over the coming presidential election. In an assembly poll, the student body was found to be very definitely pro-Dewey, although most of us thought that Roosevelt would be elected. We sat up most of election night to hear that he was. A few days later, our powerful football team crushed Exeter by a convincing 20-0 score, while the soccer team outplayed the Red in a scoreless tie.

The Winter Term saw our greatest hockey and basketball teams run wild over all opposition. The puckmen were undefeated in thirteen games, beating Exeter twice, while the quintet broke all previous scoring records with fourteen wins and only two defeats. Later in the Term, the worst blizzard in fifteen hit Andover, but the campus was cleared up enough to allow twenty Plan A Seniors to graduate while 150 couples attended a very successful Winter Prom. Complying with an ODT request, we sorrowfully relinquished our Spring Vacation.

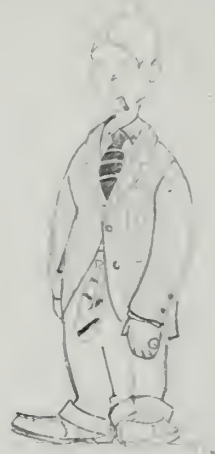

President Roosevelt's death in April came as a blow to all of us, coming a few weeks before V-E Day. Again our athletic teams showed their superiority, as we swept all Spring sports from Exeter, even winning in lacrosse, for the first time in eleven years. The tennis team was undefeated, and our Dick Phelps pitched a 3-1 victory over Exeter in baseball.

We left the Hill in the middle of May, full of anticipation for our last and best year at Andover.

SENIOR YEAR

We moved across the street. We were bigger and more mature, and we knew our way around. But, essentially, we were the same boys who had begun their Andover careers three years before, in Rockwell and Williams Hall. Our class had doubled in size since then and had finally reached the degree of importance which we had worshipped in other classes. It was a little hard to believe, but many signs pointed to the fact that we had definitely and inescapably reached our Senior Year.

Not the least of these was the issuance to us of little badges for use as positive proof that we were entitled to the time-honored Senior privilege of Prepping. Some of our number extracted full payment from the cowering newcomers, but others, remembering their own experiences, tended towards leniency. O. J. Anderson led the entire group of them in a Flagstaff Court Conga chain, while the "kiddies," Lin Bradford and Otto Gruner administered discipline to the miscreants.

Recitations began, and we soon discovered that the common phobia of American History was no joke, as we looked forlornly at the 298-page notebook. It was obvious that its difficulty had not been overrated, and we wondered how we would ever get through it. June and diploma time seemed an eternity away.

The Andersons, John and Dan, led our football and soccer teams through successful seasons, capped by Exeter contests early in November. Danny's boys were edged 2-1 by a strong Red team, but the footballers avenged that defeat the following Saturday with a resounding 18-7 triumph. One of the greatest displays of spirit ever seen in these parts took place that afternoon, when the entire school rose and rocked Plimpton Stadium with shouts of encouragement after Exeter had scored its first-period touchdown. The momentary conquerors were actually outcheered by the conquered. With that kind of support, the team soon rallied and began to give their opponents a lesson in the finer points of the game.

We settled down, after that, to the less interesting but more serious business of studying. Phillipian Editor Seedy Thomas campaigned to better Andover-Abbot relations and to get an extended Thanksgiving Vacation, but both proposals fell through in spite of his excellent editorials. Iolanthe rehearsals got under way, and the term sped to a close. On December 19, we adjourned for our first peace-time Christmas Vacation in four years.

The Winter Term, though short, was so heavily laden with athletic events, lectures, concerts, and dances that we barely had time to notice the foul New England weather. The Indianapolis Symphony came to the Hill on January 19 and played a concert of light and modern classics. Early in the term, the Film Society began its popular Wednesday night showings of the better old movies, while the Student Council sponsored a tea-dance in February.

Our five Winter teams were kept busy, as Track, Basketball, and Swimming gained decisive victories over Exeter. Basketball's Captain Harold Upjohn averaged better than fifteen points per game; Don Lazo was undefeated in the backstroke; Norm Nourse set two new records in the shotput; and Lew Bancroft was undefeated in wrestling. Pete Reiner's hockey team spent most of its time in the snow with shovels.

On February 22, the Plan A Commencement exercises were held, and six members of the class received their diplomas and left. The rest of them decided to stay until June, taking special courses in the Spring. The Senior Prom Committee procured Ruby Newman's orchestra and gave the largest Winter dance in the school's history, with 227 members of the upper two classes attending. Then we went right into exams and left for Spring Vacation on March 13.

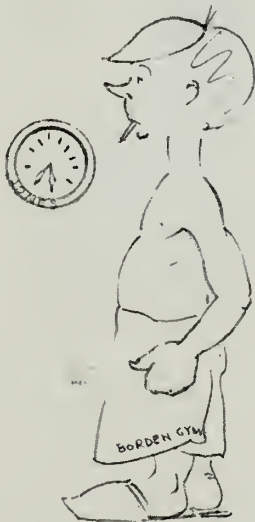

Many of us went South for the vacation, a few even venturing to Cuba, and all of us rested and enjoyed ourselves in preparation for our last—and busiest—term on the Hill.

Immediately upon our return in April, things began to happen. Monologist Dorothy Crawford enchanted the G.W.H. audience with her versatility. Walt Aikman, Dave Thaw, By Barnes, Paul Marier, and Kim Whitney gave memorable performances in the Andover-Abbot production of Iolanthe, a masterpiece of amateur showmanship. Dick Morrison's thespians presented The Night of January 16, and Norman Thomas talked on Socialism.

A rainy May hampered athletics, but our spirits and apprehension rose each day as we approached the end of the line. Congress gave many of us last-minute reprieves with the suspension of teen-age drafting. We were all tense as the college acceptances came through, and, unfortunately, some of us were disappointed. The town's Tercentenary Celebration topped off the Spring Term, and we plunged into our last exams with the Spring Prom and graduation in immediate prospect.

It had been a full year and a hard one, and we were happy, in a way, to get it over. But I'll wager that there is not one among us who will not be choked-up with sadness on June 7. There have been many times when we complained, but we, like every other class, love the place and hate to leave.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council this year tried to keep in mind, throughout all the terms, the relative success of last year's corresponding group. Credit for its proficiency should be shared by every member, for each was all-important in its functions.

Perhaps the interest underlying many motions of the Student Council was that of faculty-student relations. This idea sparked many such notions as meeting with various masters over subjects best suited to them. Since the council is directly responsible to the Headmaster, it did not intend to subordinate, by such action, this privilege. The ultimate end was to seek the faculty's opinion on many topics and translate this to the students through the medium of open meetings.

Although it did not have as many open meetings as it would have liked, it felt that much was accomplished by the few it had. The attainments pertained both to the above plan and to the forming of new ones. The few students who attended these meetings had certain definite purposes in mind, some of which were excellent and consequently put into use. Also through these gatherings, the Student Council attempted to find out the general opinion of the student body and then formulate it into plans to be put before the faculty at their weekly meetings.

Some of the direct privileges obtained by the Council during the course of the year were such things as coat racks in the Chapel, a telephone in the Commons (the number being limited to one because of war restrictions), and finally an extension of weekend permissions.

Besides this, the Council has been active during the year in the running of Tea Dances and other formal duties. The discussions held during its meetings may prove, as hoped, to be a basis for a more liberal and powerful group in years to come.

SOCIAL SERVICE

SOCIETY OF INQUIRY

PRESIDENT DAN ANDERSON
Thousands for Charity

The original purposes of the Society of Inquiry, as stated by its thirteen Theological Seminary founders in 1833, were to "inquire into the moral state of the world and to effect a mission to the heathen." Since then, the Society of Inquiry has modified these aims to include educational and financial as well as religious philanthropy to P. A. and the town, as well as to the rest of the world. The service of the S. of I. during 1945-46, its hundred-and-thirteenth year, though perhaps less spectacular and impressive than in past years, has been indeed no less important or effective.

Sponsoring its traditional Prep reception on the first Sunday afternoon of the Fall Term, the Society invited all new boys at P. A. to meet Dr. Fuess in the Social Room of the Commons. At the Prep Rally in George Washington Hall that evening, prominent Seniors, leaders in various extracurricular activities or representatives of athletics and the Student Council, were asked by the S. of I. to speak informally about the organizations and functions on their own fortes. Large attendance at both occasions bespoke their popularity.

A service more tangible, and one primarily to the world outside Andover rather than to the school or town, was the annual Charities Drive on November 9, the eve of the Exeter football game. Treasurer Jim Dale directed the drive, in which some thirty student volunteers helped canvass and collect from 100% of the student body $4678 worth of pledges, almost $1000 in excess of the goal set. By the time all pledges were paid, the total amounted to several hundred dollars more, making this year's contribution the biggest yet. The faculty and the Phillipian gave generously of their publicity and moral support. Receipts of the drive were divided among such deserving educational or humane funds as the Red Cross, the Hampton Institute, the United War Relief, two P. A. scholarships, and the American Friends' Service Commission.

Realizing that the structure of Inquiry facilitates the service of its fifteen members in almost any phase of school life, President Dan Anderson incorporated into the organization's multi-faceted policy the aim of fostering a closer student-faculty relationship. To its reception for the newly married Mrs. Fuess on the afternoon of February 10, the S. of I. therefore invited several faculty members as well as the entire Senior Class.

SENIOR RECEPTION

The success of this affair led to the suggestion that the Society invite about a dozen faculty and students to dinner at the Log Cabin in the Sanctuary. After the meal, the group could relax in the informal atmosphere of the Cabin, chatting about various topics until evening study hours. This plan was carried out every convenient Thursday night from then on, two S. of I. members and six other students being hosts to four bachelor teachers or two married men and their wives. Its popularity promises continuance of this worthwhile function next year.

In keeping with its usual policy of offering entertainment and educational lectures to the school and townspeople, Inquiry this year brought several noted speakers to the G.W.H. platform. Among others were Howard Thurman, the distinguished Negro Dean of the Chapel at Howard University, and Norman Thomas, long-standing Socialist candidate for President. During the Fall Term, there was Miss Nondas Metcalfé, a USO camp trouper who told of her experiences in the European "Foxhole Circuit." In the line of entertainment during the Spring Term, the Andover Male Chorus was asked to sing before the Saturday night movies. Other plans which would have still further increased the organization's prestige failed, through no fault of its members or of Mr. Baldwin. Trouble was had obtaining appropriate speakers for the annual all-day conference, and student interest lagged. Dr. Perry, Exeter's retiring headmaster, was invited to visit and possibly address the school, but, already faced with a heavy schedule of honorary banquets, he could not come.

For what they have accomplished, however, and particularly for the innovation of the Thursday night student-faculty dinners, Messrs. Baldwin and Follansbee and the outgoing board are to be highly praised.

President	A. G. Kerrigan
Vice-President	R. E. Quaintance
Secretary-Treasurer	R. S. Dulin

Unlike the S. of I., Circle A is an organization concerned with the study of social and economic problems almost entirely outside the school community. Its larger size facilitates more practical work by its members toward bettering existing conditions, particularly in the vicinity of the school. This work falls naturally into three categories: fortnightly supper meetings in the Rose Room of the Commons, field trips to points of interest in the pursuit of its studies, and social service work in the school and town.

The discussion meetings were usually held every other Monday evening throughout the year. Besides taking up plans for field trips and other activities at this time, Circle A sought the leadership of qualified adults in the discussion of various fields of their work. During the Fall term, Circle A sponsored a talk in assembly by Captain Gaston Vandermeerssche, a leader in the Belgium underground. Formerly a teacher he told in vivid, often amusing, language of his thrilling escapades and final capture by the Germans while engaged in intelligence work. The Captain closed his speech with an appeal for food packages for the starving Belgian students and the suggestion that P. A. students follow up this service with letters, which he promised would be well appreciated and answered. Over seventy students have since sent food and letters to less fortunate students abroad.

Jean C. Atwell, representing the American Friends Service Committee, told Circle A members at a Winter Term supper meeting of the opportunities that organization affords high school students. Several members expressed interest in the AFSC summer work camp projects throughout this country and in Mexico, and in the Institutes of International Relations sponsored annually in various regions of the U. S. In the middle of April, Sgt. Joseph Horan, at a meeting in Mr. Baldwin's Hidden Field home, told the group of his experiences on Bataan before its capture and of his later life in a Japanese prison camp. The last supper meeting of the year was the annual hot-dog dinner at Mr. Baldwin's.

Another new activity, in which many Circle A members participated, was Mr. Baldwin's discussion group. Meeting Wednesdays from five to six in the Tower Room of the Cochran Chapel, the ever-hanging group touched on innumerable topics not necessarily concerning religion. Mr. Baldwin acted not only as moderator but also as purveyor, bestowing equal portions of wisdom and refreshments.

Three field trips were taken by Circle A during the year: to Danvers State Hospital, to Charlestown Prison, and to the Norfolk Prison Colony. These were enlightening and enjoyed by all who participated. Other trips were planned to the Boston State House, the Lawrence Clinic, and the Christian Science Press but failed for one reason or another.

As for practical service, Circle A accomplished a good deal this year. A successful Old Clothes drive was held at the end of each term, the filled sacks collected by Circle A members and turned over to worthy causes. In the fall, a new project was carried out: the faculty were canvassed for canned goods, and the 450 cans collected were sent to a nationwide organization for subsequent shipment to Europe. Fairly regularly through the year, members Tony Schulte, Ferd Mastrangelo, Frank Jones, and others coached or refereed basketball, softball, or bowling for the young lads of the town at the Andover Guild. From the Circle A treasury went money for four sets of jerseys for the basketball teams at this community center. At the year's close, the usual collection of used text books for the Loan Library was handled by the organization.

THE SCHOOL MINISTER
Who gets the collections?

The Church of Christ in Phillips Academy includes in its fellowship those members of the student body and of the faculty who want to maintain, during their stay at Andover, an active relationship to the Christian Church. In the past few years, the Academy Church has grown in numbers and in strength. Its members come from many sects and denominations of the Christian religion. This difference of background and tradition has not interfered with our unity of purpose nor our declaration of a common faith.

Under the leadership of Mr. George Follansbee, the student deacons of the Academy Church have this year brought student participation in the program of the Church to its highest point. The Seniors and Upper Middlers who constitute this body have served as ushers at all the regular church services, as deacons in the Communion services held each month, and as advisers to the School Minister in many matters relating to the religious program of the school. Richard C. Moses has been chairman of the student deacons. The group includes also Myles W. Chute, Paul K. Fisher, Jr., Frank S. Jones, Carl E. Stenberg, J. Kimball Whitney, Reeves W. Hart, Jr., Doran E. Perdue, Daniel O. Anderson, and Anthony G. Kerrigan.

POT POURRI

EDITOR-IN CHIEF DICK MOSES

No one-man job—this

There comes a time when every Editor must make some sort of policy statement and pass out the orchids for the year's work. In a way, this is unfortunate, since it is a little hard to define an editorial policy which has, at times, been a bit blurred in our own mind. Yet it is a good idea too, because we want an opportunity to thank, in some small measure, those who are responsible for what we sincerely hope is the "success" of the book.

In planning the original dummy for the finished product you are now reading, we found ourselves almost diametrically opposed to the powers behind last year's product. Our predecessor maintained that his was primarily a School, rather than a Class book, and that it was essentially a one-man job. With both of these we disagree.

We are of the belief that, inasmuch as every class is entitled to its own volume, each year's POT POURRI should concentrate on the Senior Class. Of course, there must be an overall coverage great enough to interest all classes, since we would be unable to exist without a large subscription. But in the final analysis, this is the only permanent record the Class of '46 has of the most important year of its short collective life. Therefore, readers of this volume will note that the emphasis is very definitely on the Senior Class.

It is inevitable that, in work such as this, a large part of the organization and execution should fall on the Editor. In spite of this, we do not intend to claim that we have produced a one-man book. The job is far too big for one, two, or even ten people. It requires the concentrated effort of about sixty to put out a book of this sort—even a bad one. We have been exceptionally fortunate in having a truly wonderful group of advisors and associates.

Rollo Algrant has been a superb Managing Editor, the real technician behind our makeup. Jim Mellor was a great help in handling the Senior section, and Ed Jones' art work is obviously destined for greater things.

On the business end, Kim Whitney's aggressiveness and smooth handling of the finances have allowed us free play with the budget. Turtle Friday and Mac McLanahan were his capable aides.

We all have enjoyed doing this work, and we hope our efforts are justified by the results.

PHILLIPIAN

Climaxing a year's endeavor, The Phillipian was presented the Gold Medal Award from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Editor-in-Chief Fred Thomas, Managing Editor Martin Begien, Sports Editor Roland Algrant, and Assignment Editor Ed Jordan may well be proud of their paper, for it has reached a high degree of popularity among the undergraduates and their parents, while keeping its standard of journalism high.

Although there were no changes in the format, The Phillipian instituted several new features, and altered some old ones in order to stimulate student interest. "Sammy Phillips was born over a bad Beanery lunch," and thus was started a weekly cartoon by Ed Jones. The personification of the Andover student proved immensely popular because it so clearly mirrored campus life. The innovations of last year, "On the Sidelines," and "With the Clubs" were continued as columns this year, and the use of more pictures was effective in enlivening the pages.

Aside from these alterations, there was a decided improvement in the actual writing of the paper. Fred Thomas stirred student interest and opinion again and again with his sharp editorials. He raised for student discussions problems such as the Andover-Abbot relations, the Student Union-Gym controversy, and the request for a change in the exam schedule. The front page had several exclusive stories including the announcement of Dr. Fuess's marriage, the visit of the UNO site committee, and Life Magazine's trip to Andover.

EDITOR SEEDY THOMAS

Also contributing to the paper's success was the excellent circulation support received from the students and their parents. Since 95% of the school subscribed, The Phillipian was able to pay for special teatime, and six-page issues. Such fine support also allowed the board to buy a type stand and install a telephone in The Phillipian room, thereby increasing efficiency.

At the end of the Winter term a new board took over the offices of the paper. Led by Editor-in-Chief Bill Stuckey, the new officers are striving to keep The Phillipian a great newspaper by all standards.

MIRROR

In the second year of renewed publication of the Mirror, the school's ninety-two year old literary magazine, Editor-in-Chief Geoffrey Bush accomplished a complete change in the format of the magazine. The printed matter was on uncoated paper, and there were no break-overs. A special section in the center of the magazine was devoted to reproductions of student paintings. Many of the short stories were illustrated by members of the student art classes.

During the Fall Term, Circulation Editor Whit Budge conducted a highly successful subscription campaign. Much of the credit for the success of the Mirror must go to Business Manager Donald Landis, who collected so many advertisements that the magazine could be made almost twice as large as last year's. More than eighty contributions, five times as many as could be printed, were submitted by the students to the Editorial Board.

The first issue appeared in January. Among the senior contributors were Corydon, Wilde, Abruzzo, Moses, Van Cleve, Bush, and Constable. The work of two Uppers, Stuckey and Adelman, was outstanding. The paintings were by Budge, Abruzzo, Grinnell, and Koehler. There were illustrations to the story by Art Editor Kimball, E. S. Jones, F. C. Thomas and others.

GLEE CLUB

OFFICERS

President	L. A. CARLSMITH
Secretary	R. C. MOSES
Treasurer	J. K. WHITNEY
Librarian	C. H. QUINBY

Although there was hardly the phenomenal initial turnout of last year's Glee Club, many capable singers joined in the Fall of 1945, and adequate section leaders were found, so that work on the season's large repertory could begin almost at once. A successful concert at Rogers Hall in Lowell constituted the only Fall-Term activity; the Spring schedule was, however, unusually heavy.

The extra rehearsals needed for the Iolanthe production offered a problem, but by the concentrated effort of the Club's musical directors, and of the members themselves, it was possible to arrange sufficient practice periods for everything, especially the Symphony Hall concert in April. Some of the music undergoing preparation for this major event was presented at the Dana Hall concert in February, with gratifying results.

The Symphony Hall concert itself was, as last year, given by six New England preparatory-school choruses, the combined body being so large as to call for especially careful training and attention. Under the leadership of Harvard's Dr. Davison, this group sang a substantially complete form of Handel's L'Allegro (after Milton), excerpts from Vaughan Williams' opera, Sir John in Love, and three chorales arranged by Bach. The performance, greeted with outstanding success, justified the consumption of many long rehearsal hours. It was a valuable experience, interesting and enjoyable for everyone. Fortunate, too was the choice of the program, featuring rarely-heard works of unique merit.

MUSICIAN CARLSMITH
For him a busy year

The Spring Term was further highlighted by joint concerts with Bradford Junior College and Beaver Country Day School. New selections were introduced at that time, but the main body of the Glee Club's repertory was already organized and mastered. Throughout the season, the industry of the organization's officers and the interest of its members sustained it. Guiding its activities tirelessly were the expert hands of Mr. Howes and Dr. Pfatteicher, whose efforts cannot possibly be overrated.

As always, the Glee Club, carried on under Dr. Pfatteicher's close personal supervision, presenting fine choral music at most of the Chapel services. This addition to the School's religious procedure, as well as to the various holiday and graduation ceremonies, was a very appreciable one. Aided by the superlative organ-playing of Dr. Pfatteicher, the musical forces in the Cochran Chapel maintained a high standard of performance which remains as a challenge to future Choirs.

ORCHESTRA

FRIDAY EVENING REHEARSAL
"Hallelujah"

The Orchestra seems always to have been afflicted with lack of student interest. This year, however, there was a larger and better string section than several past seasons have witnessed, and those instrumentalists who did see fit to come out proved to be of prevailingly hopeful capabilities.

Absence of departed members did not go unfelt, and vacancies in certain sections remained vacancies; but the surprisingly large influx of new talent helped to make the orchestra fully as successful as last year's, and inspired golden hopes for seasons yet to come, since many of the new comers are from the lower classes.

The choice of scores for performance was singularly fortunate this year. A Suite by Handel, lively and pleasant, proved to be within the reach of every player, with the result that its two public performances were very well received. This first of these was also the Orchestra's first appearance of the year, taking place in Assembly before the student body. The second performance was at the Glee Club's debut at Rogers Hall, in Lowell.

Limited time and rehearsal restrictions prevented the adoption of a more expansive repertory, but the members applied themselves diligently to the mastery of two movements from a Haydn symphony. Only one performance was given, this being at the Beaver concert in May, when Mr. Cook of Beaver conducted the combined orchestras of the two schools.

So, on the two occasions when the Orchestra joined its brother-organization, the Glee Club, it enriched rather than encumbered the program. More appearances might have been arranged, but most of the concerts this year were in distant places, to which transportation of the heavier equipment would have been difficult.

In addition to its function as a performing musical organization, the Orchestra serves in the capacity of a training school, and as such gives valuable experience to its members. The careful and inspired leadership of Mr. MacDonald is responsible for the increase in musicianship which most players gain, and his lessons in violin, given gratis to students of the instrument, are likewise invaluable. Under his guidance, the organization this year worked on a score considerably more difficult than those used in concert: Copland's Outdoor Overture. The advanced rhythms and enlightened writing for modern orchestra made the study of this work exceptionally interesting and beneficial, although attempts to master it were sporadic and did not end with a near-perfect result.

When Mr. MacDonald was unable to come from Boston due to other engagements, or when a special rehearsal was deemed necessary, Doctor Pfatteicher conducted. Like Mr. MacDonald, he inspired efficient playing by his tireless devotion and energetic enthusiasm in what might have seemed to many an exasperating and not particularly rewarding task.

In addition to the efforts of the conductors who gave their time, the faithful attendance of most of the members helped incalculably in making the season as successful as it was.

RIVETERS

Starting early in the Fall Term, Corky Carlsmith, welded a promising group of applicants into one of the better musical organizations ever seen on Andover Hill. Returned after venturesome and evidently musical summer vacations were eight completely reliable stalwarts, who formed the backbone of this year's band. Added to these were four new men of musical talent who added a few bones here and there to said back.

Carlsmith himself wielded first trumpet, frequently giving stellar solos. Second trumpet was in the hands of Bob Monetti, while two newcomers, Al Horowitz and Phil Kennedy joined in.

Especially sonorous was this year's sax section, led by veteran Dick Myers on the tenor sax. Other nuclei were Andy Wilde, Dick Prentiss, and prep Jim Wood, who performed with great dexterity on both lead alto sax and clarinet. Another prep in the section was Ken Ganem, a Lower.

Vibrating in the trombone section was Bob Freeman, the only trombonist from last year. Newcomer Earl Putnam also contributed his share to the sliding tones.

In the Winter Term, a bass player, Lower Middler Phil Hayes, was discovered and enlisted in the ranks. Providing the percussion (and a few free antics) was Ken McLean.

The featured soloists, or rather, duetists were Jim Wood and Johnny Curtis. Wood, the versatile prep already mentioned, handled the clarinet, and Curtis swayed delightfully at the piano in presenting original arrangements to admiring audiences.

Among their engagements this year, the Riveters list tea dances, a Glee Club dance at Rogers Hall, the Punchard Spring Prom, and at the Music Festival at Symphony Hall. Under the leadership of Johnny Curtis, next year's band also promises to excel, for five veterans will return in September.

8-in-1 OCTET

Completing their seventh year as an active student organization on the Hill, this year's 8-in-1 Octet will be recognized as one of the feature entertainment groups of the year.

Ably led by Kim Whitney, the only holdover from last year's group, the members included Lou Barnes and Hank Scott, first tenors; Dave Thaw and Kim, second tenors; Steve West and Corky Carlsmith, first basses; and Dick Moses and Jim Morse, second basses.

After several Fall rehearsals, the Octet performed before the movies in early December. Encores were continually requested by the roaring applause of the audience, as "The Pope," "Wake, Freshman, Wake," "Mood Indigo" and others were rendered.

Soon, all those who attended Andover tea-dances and Proms enjoyed the Octet. Besides harmonizing at these functions, the singers continued to gain merit through their performances at most of the

DRESS REHEARSAL

The performance was even better

After a year's lapse, the combined music clubs of Andover and Abbot again produced a rollicking Gilbert and Sullivan hit, this year's production being Iolanthe.

Although not as melodious as some, it is considered an excellent show and symbolizes G. & S. at their best.

This year's production was the climax of long hours of practice, beginning in the Fall Term, when the choruses and principals rehearsed separately. Joint rehearsals began in the Winter Term under the direction of Mrs. Center, a Gilbert and Sullivan expert from Boston. She was ably assisted by Dr. Grew and Mr. Cochran, the production directors, and the finished show began to take shape.

The performance featured some fine talent from both schools, in both the lead parts and the choruses. Walt Aikman was a perfect Lord High Chancellor, and he brought down the house with his booming voice. Dave Thaw, repeating his former success in the Pirates, played a loudly loving Strephon. Bye Barnes, as Lord Tolloller, tonally topped the cast, while Lord Montararat was excellently done by Paul Marier. The part of Private Willis was sung by Kim Whitney.

On the distaff side, Margie Sommers made an attractive Phyllis and Sally Powers a fine, fearsome Fairy Queen. "G. B." Wright played Iolanthe while "Pete" Hogan was a trolloping success as Fleta. Helen Mastrangelo enacted the part of Celia, and Gail Sullivan portrayed Leila.

The piano-accompaniment was rendered by two top music students, Gil Collier and "Jock" Darling, while the whole performance was directed by Dr. Carl F. Pfatteicher, Director of Music.

No review would be complete without mention of the great work of the Stage Crew and all those that worked backstage. They all did a fine job with a tough assignment.

Owing to a scarcity of members, the Band was not as good as it could have been this year, but President "Corky" Carlsmith whipped them into shape for the first game of the year with Tufts. Rehearsing once a week under the baton of Mr. MacDonald, they gave excellent support at all the home games. The band reached its peak at the rally and the Exeter game itself, when they far outdid the Exeter band in formations between the halves, and were probably responsible, in part, for the victory over Exeter.

The band was discontinued during the Winter Term, but resumed its playing at the baseball games this past Spring.

In the past, there has been no incentive to join the band, other than a love for music. Carlsmith hopes to have a larger band in the Spring, by means of athletic excuses granted for afternoon rehearsals. There has also been expressed the hope that membership in the band might be credited towards a student's diploma, as it is in most high schools. These two factors would greatly swell the ranks, and make for more music.

SKIPPERS CARTER AND WINTON
It's tougher in borrowed dinghies

For the second consecutive year, the Phillips Academy Yacht Racing Club may be called a success. Under the leadership of Co-Commodores Mike Winton and Dick Carter, the organization took to the water during the Fall Term. Handicapped by the use of borrowed Sailing Dinghies, they were out-jibbed on the Charles River Basin by M.I.T. at a score of 132-123.

Operating in teams of two, the P. A. yachtsmen were sparked on by Bob Monetti, holder of the Long Island Junior Racing Championship.

Although still in its embryo stages, the club has come a long way in its two years of existence. Much of the credit goes to Mr. Bob Sides, faculty advisor for the group. The Spring program was still indefinite as we go to press, but it was hoped that meets with Harvard, M.I.T., and Brown could be arranged.

FLYING CLUB

Re-instituted this year, after a wartime lapse, the flying club has been a success, in spite of the original high price of instruction. As the local rates were exorbitant, a company of Navy veterans, located at Springfield, offered to fly to the North Andover Airport every Wednesday and Saturday, weather permitting, to instruct, at unusually low rates, those interested. The original stock of aircraft consisted of a Luscombe Silvaire and a Piper Cub. Operations went into full swing at the beginning of the Winter Term, using skis on account of the snow. Members found landing with skis fascinating and much easier than on ordinary wheels. The flying continued without mishap in spite of the usual New England winter, the only casualty being a bent "prop," which resulted from the extremely rough conditions on the field during the early Spring.

With the arrival of the Spring Term, plans were made to use floats on the spacious reservoir near the airport. Also, a new Piper and a Luscombe were ordered, and there is a possibility that there will also be a Republic Seabee, the highly publicized new "pusher-type" amphibian. With these prospects, the flying club looks forward to a highly successful Spring term.

Requirements were that the candidate be sixteen years of age and procure a waiver of responsibility from his parents. Much credit is due Mr. Robert Sides for his invaluable aid, advice, and transportation. The club hopes to continue expansion and to inaugurate a ground school course for preflight members next year. Having endured the expected troubles of a new organization, the club looks forward to a bigger and better year in '46-'47.

STUDIO ART

ARTIST PAT MORGAN
Patience Pays Off

The Studio offers a chance for the more adventuresome-minded students to put into action the art theory they must learn. During the course, they usually discover the work is pleasant but messy, and the results surprising. At first, fully as much paint gets on their clothes—usually the seat of their trousers—as gets on their paintings. This supports the town tailors at student expense until the latter learn control of the dangerous weapons of self-expression.

The output varies according to the individuality of the students. By the time they are Seniors, should they elect to take the advanced course, this individuality is usually aggressively apparent in their work. By then, some are wildly modern in their approach, and reduce nature unhesitatingly to a geometric shadow of her native complexity, while others work toward a more detailed traditional result. From both groups come creditable solutions, and each is an eye opener to the other.

The student work assembled for a Spring Exhibition gives a clue to the quality and variety of the output. Selected work was sent to a nation-wide exhibit at Dayton, Ohio, last summer called "What the Teen-agers Are Painting." There, Tom Abruzzo was awarded First Prize for his Abstract Still Life and Whit Budge an Honorable Mention for his Landscape With Bridge. An exchange exhibition with Dana Hall was held this Winter, taking the place of the Abbot competition held in former years.

Two mural panels for the Biology Lab have been designed and executed by this year's Seniors. These, along with easel paintings, life-drawings, architectural studies and clay modeling make the Student Show one of general interest to a much wider public than most students realize. Perhaps it is just as well that the student invariably underestimates his artistic achievement. For art work is good fun when you can get it to do.

RIFLE CLUB

The Rifle Club has become the most popular activity on the Hill since the war began, and it continued to enjoy its war-time popularity in its first peace-time season. This year saw another record enrollment, and since membership in the club was run on a first-come-first-serve basis, many late-comers had to be turned away. Although the size of the group demanded that fellows double-up guns, there was the consolation that war-time ammunition shortages were ended.

Members competed for National Rifle Association medals and certificates, the highest award being that of Expert Rifleman. Two of them, Robert Wexler, and Myles Chute, Vice-President of the organization, were in this class. The other officers elected for the year were S. Y. Hord, President; F. V. Fortmiller, Executive Officer, and A. G. Tebbens, Secretary-Treasurer.

No team was picked for outside matches, because Mr. Peck wanted to give the benefit of his instructions to as many boys as possible, rather than concentrate his efforts on a smaller group. It should be added that Mr. Peck and his aides were awarded recognition by the National

SERGEANT PECK IN CHARGE
They usually hit the target

Rifle Association for meritorious service during the war.

However, at the end of the season, a team of sharpshooters was chosen to compete against Exeter. There was a great deal of excellent marksmanship on both sides, but the Blue lost the match to their rivals by a few points. It is hoped that more competitions can be held in the future to give the riflemen preparation for next year's Andover-Exeter contest.

The Rifle Club also held its annual inter-club contest at the end of the season. Wexler took top honors with a score of 370 out of 400; Appel was second with 362; Bernardin was third with 351; Yost was fourth with 345; and Levine and Michalovich tied for fifth place with scores of 341.

Congratulations should be given Mr. Peck for his tireless efforts in handling the immense amount of work entailed in the operation of such a large club. "Monty" held rifle sessions four nights a week and undertook the burden of keeping straight the records of all the boys. The National Rifle Association awarded him recognition for meritorious service during the war, and though the club cannot give him a medal, he has won the wholehearted thanks of all its members.

DRAMA CLUB

Revived this year after four years' hibernation, the Dramatic Club made its debut presenting Ayn Rand's comedy-drama in three acts, Night of January 16. This play, which was given on Broadway in 1935, was chosen chiefly because of the unusual amount of audience participation involved in its presentation. The entire play takes place in a courtroom where Karen Andre is on trial for the death of Bjorn Faulkner. The jury is chosen from the audience before the curtain rises, and it is they who decide at the end of the play whether Karen is guilty.

Despite delays and mixups, the play came off on May 3rd, 1946, much to the surprise of everyone. The set was somewhat unusual, as might have been expected of one designed by Tom Abruzzo and Dick Kimball. If it was difficult to see the connection between a courtroom and the set, all you had to do was use the imagination (so they say).

The play was ably directed by Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell, who gave her time and efforts unreservedly towards the success of the production.

During this year, the Philomathean Society has had more boys from the lower classes participate in debates than in past years. Dr. Johnson became Philo's new faculty adviser. Under the leadership of President Don Landis, debates were held on a great variety of subjects at the weekly meetings in Bulfinch Hall.

PRESIDENT DON LANDIS
He will argue on anything

Joel Nixon, elected President in January, continued the policy of encouraging boys to debate who had done little or no public speaking. Topping off the Winter Term was a debate on whether or not school rules should go.

The varsity debaters were also active. Ken Borg and Joel Nixon defeated M.I.T. on the question of the arbitration of labor disputes. Dick Hulbert, Ed Jordan, and Don Landis won a debate against Middlesex on the Pearl Harbor inquiry.

The highlights of the debating year were two debating victories over Exeter during the Spring Term on the same night and on the same question, "Do the Primary Interests of Russia and the United States Conflict." The home team of Creelman, Hulbert, and Nixon took the affirmative, and the away team of Borg, Jordan, and Landis took the negative. Both decisions were two to one.

FILM SOCIETY

This year, still in its infancy, the Film Society boasts a membership of well over seven hundred students and faculty members. Directors of the Executive branch of the group are President Dick Moses and Treasurer Kim Whitney, who work, in conjunction with Mr. Morgan, founder and guiding spirit of the organization. Below them, is the Sub-Committee, which meets regularly to draw up lists of films from which the final selections are made.

Limited by the number of showings (eight) and by the length of time available (6:15-7:45 Wednesday evenings), a really comprehensive series is virtually impossible, but the aim of the Society has always been to cover as many general categories as possible, selecting only those which are considered outstanding in some particular phase of their production. A comedy, a Western, a mystery, an adventure, a musical, and foreign picture are included in each year's program, and an effort is made to choose key pictures in each field. In this manner, a more complete contrast of the various forms of presentation is offered, along with an outline of the technical development of the industry itself.

In an effort to assure the preservation of the society and its integration into school life, the Executive Committee voted, at its year-end meeting, to establish a two-hundred-dollar scholarship to benefit a member of the Upper Middle class. The terms of the fund are that it should go to a boy "in need of financial aid who has helped to integrate the Film Society into school life and whose general contribution to other recognized school activities might otherwise go unrewarded." The recipient of the award for this year will be announced on Prize Day.

Sandy Trowbridge was elected President for next year, and upon him falls the responsibility of maintaining the prestige which the group has built up in the few years of its existence.

SPANISH CLUB

For those boys taking Spanish who desired to supplement their classroom work with extracurricular Spanish activities, the Spanish Club, under the direction of Mr. Manuel Pinto, afforded an excellent opportunity. This is the first year that such a group has been organized, although similar plans have been worked with the French and Latin students in the past. The Club sponsored two activities during the three terms—a play and a Spanish table in the Commons.

The play was Zaragueta, a comedy, by Vitaly Aza, the famous Spanish dramatist. Only the second act of the full production was given, owing to the lack of time and the difficulty for the boys to memorize their Spanish lines. The parts were taken by John Sylvester, Don Fitzsimmons, Andy Flues, Jim Brydon, Russ Thomes, Ed Mastrangelo, and Lohr Gonzales. John Freeman was in charge of the music.

The second activity, that of the Spanish table, met each Thursday and Friday in the Rose Room of the Commons.

Only Spanish was spoken. Many laughs were had over the boys' apparent inability to speak the language, but by the end of the year they were quite proficient.

BIRD-BANDING CLUB

Back Row: Parsons, Wellman, Henderson, Blake Front Row: Kimball, Aikman, President; Shields, D. J. Sutherland

This year, the P. A. Bird-Banding Club experienced one of its more successful seasons. Sponsored by Mr. Follansbee, the Club got off to a fine start last fall with an active membership of twenty students. With Walt Aikmen as President, the boys showed much interest in this rather specialized hobby. Field Headquarters for the Club is the small shack behind Rabbits Pond, where all the equipment necessary for bird-banding is kept. Each day during the Fall and Spring Terms, at intervals of two hours, some member visits the ground-traps and bands the ensnared birds. The small bands, carefully placed on each bird's leg, carry registration numbers, which are entered in the records by the student. After the banding process, the birds are set free. Several hundred birds are registered throughout the two terms of activity, this work being divided among the members so that the daily checks do not interfere with any student's classes.

The purpose of this extracurricular activity, aside from recreation, is to help gather information about the lives of the birds in this part of the country. The Club reports all band-numbers and other facts about bird life here to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Headquarters in Washington, D. C. Sometimes the same birds revisit the Hill and are registered again, some as long as three years after their first trapping. Similar bird-banding organizations in the U.S. also send reports of their work to Washington. By comparing these reports, the government is able to determine such things as the migration and length of life of birds.

Membership in the P. A. Bird-Banding Club is purely voluntary, and it is open to all students. The increasing undergraduate interest during the past year is good evidence that the organization is a worthwhile pastime. One does not need any special talents to be a member. However, much valuable experience is gained in handling live birds, in baiting and setting the traps, and in keeping the records. If the Club continues to operate in the manner in which it has this year, it will do well.

P. J. U.

SCIENCE CLUB

The 1945-46 Science Club has featured a variety of experiments. Over forty boys have started projects, more or less ambitious, and some have completed them. Preparation of chemical compounds has been accomplished by David McCurdy, Howard Taylor, and Richmond Gardner, and several members have done electroplating. Kenneth Griffiths, ever building a bigger and better electric furnace, has worked with metals and carbides amongst powerful quantities of "soot and vapour." Two members entered the Westinghouse Science Talent Search.

The Science Club equipment has been increased by war surplus items. Chief among these is the 400-horsepower Ranger engine which is mounted in the lobby of Morse Hall and now undergoing analysis by a number of mechanically-minded members of the group. Glass-working technique, slide rule instruction, surface tension measurements, and liquefaction of gases have been included in the season's activity.

The Phillips Academy Hour of 1944 and 1945 became the Student Round Table in 1945. Every program, broadcast over Lawrence's WLAW, featured student participation. A panel of students, led by a Faculty moderator, formed the usual group for discussion of current national topics or literary subjects.

STUDENT ROUND TABLE IN ACTION

"Personally, I believe..."

Mr. John K. Colby, director of the Student Round Table, introduced a new feature, when, on February 6, an all-undergraduate program, including a student moderator, Joel Nixon, was presented on the question "Youth Views the Negro Problem." Later in the series, undergraduate Donald M. Landis presented a program on American Foreign Policy.

Dr. Fuess, Dr. Johnson, Mr. Allis, and Mr. Small acted as moderators on such topics as: American Literature, the Government's Responsibility to the Worker, Current Drama, and Scholastic Curriculum.

The Student Round Table ran in competition with Frank Sinatra every Wednesday night and, while not exactly driving him off the air, at least managed to hold its own. Credit for the success of the program must go to Mr. Colby, without whose patience and diligence nothing could have been done.

PRINTING CLUB

The Paul Revere Press, in spite of its chronic ailments, is completing one of its most successful years. The Club suffered, as in the past, from a shortage of manpower and materials and from the fact that, because of his heavy schedule, Mr. van der Stucken was unable to devote much time to the work. Nevertheless, the Church programs were produced regularly and other jobs were completed as frequently as possible.

During the Fall Term, the outstanding jobs included the Athletic Banquet program, the annual Christmas Church program, and the Film Society tickets. These were augmented by stationery jobs for students and by Christmas card jobs for both students and masters.

During the Spring a successful Iolanthe program was run off and it is hoped that a return can be made to the regular two-page Church bulletin. It may also be possible to install on the press the motor which is so badly needed. At the end of the year, the Paul Revere Prizes in

ADVISORY BOARD

Back Row: Whitney, Chute, Moses, Suisman
Front Row: S. I. Paradise, Nourse, O. J. Anderson, Wood

The Advisory Board is a group established principally for the purpose of creating a closer relationship between the student body and the Athletic Association of Phillips Academy. In its meetings, which are held several times a term, besides taking up the official duties which it has to perform, the Board discusses with Mr. Shepard, the Athletic Director, various problems concerning the sports set-up and votes on any changes which it may deem necessary. The eight members of the Board consist of the Captains and Managers of football and baseball, the Co-captains and Manager of track, and the Undergraduate Treasurer, who is selected by the Board. This year the positions were held by O. J. Anderson and Dick Moses in Football, Bill Wood and Mike Suisman in Baseball, Norm Nourse, Skip Paradise, and Myles Chute in Track, and Kim Whitney, Undergraduate Treasurer. The established duties of the group are to elect the Open Door, Cheerleaders, P. A. Police and Assistant Managers, from a list of volunteers approved by the faculty. Also, it is the duty of this student group to pass on all the athletic insignia. Choosing the P. A. Police and the Open Door is perhaps the most important function of the Board as it is these groups which keep order at athletic events and act as a welcoming committee for visiting teams. On each of them hangs a very heavy burden, since outsiders get their ideas on how the school functions according to the dependability and efficiency of these two groups. Through the persistence and initiative of the members, Golf has been reinstated as a Spring sport. It was voted to abolish the terms "Major" and "Minor" in sports at Andover. At the time of this writing, no action has been taken concerning a change in insignia, but it is expected in the near future.

CHEERLEADER LAZO    OPEN DOORMAN MELLOR
Grrrrah!                      Hi!

POLICE CHIEF KERRIGAN
Nothing bothers him

The Open Door, P.A. Police, and Cheerleaders act as liaison between the student body and visiting teams on those numerous Wednesdays and Saturdays when Phillips Academy stalwarts are to engage in athletic struggle. The first is the actual reception committee, catering to locker room and dining hall desires when our opponents arrive, and extending the school's hospitality generally. The second group occupies its time by chasing dogs off the football field when it is being used for its intended purpose, and keeping order and geniality among spectators. Quite obviously, the Cheerleaders have as their primary responsibility the response of the audience to the situations of the game. On Exeter days, that is those days when the student body moves to that pastoral scene in New Hampshire for a major athletic contest, these three organizations unite in their forts to transform the school into an orderly whole for the march to the stadium and stifle individualism in the bleachers.

Under the guidance of Mr. DiClemente and the leadership, this year, of Jim Mellor, the Open Door has done an admirable job. It is no small task to coördinate the itineraries of three, four, or five lots of twenty or so in one afternoon. Members of the faculty, observing certain individuals continually haunting the railroad station, have come to realize that they are usually Open Door Men waiting for a train to come in and not would-be delinquents. As to crises, several have arisen due to bottlenecks in the Borden Gym dressing-room facilities and cases of mistaken identities.

Tony Kerrigan has been Police Chief this year and has done a splendid job with the force. Exigencies are constantly arising having to do with youngsters' hanging on guide ropes, gate-crashers at basketball games who make use of fire exits, and hearty disagreement among spectators. However, the cops are always on hand to arbitrate disputes, maintain order, and alleviate general confusion.

Essential to any victory is the support from the stands. It has never been better than it was this year. Leading the masses in vocal concurrence was Don Lazo, with five others, comprising the Cheerleaders. Their energetic demonstrations played an integral part in creating the high morale and spirit of the school this year.

Prospects for these three organizations next year are good. Following the parallel, we should have a superb athletic record again next year.

FOOTBALL

SOROTA, MEANY AND FLANAGAN
Prep Schools' best

The New York Herald Tribune, longtime leader in the coverage of eastern school football, this year rated Andover's team as the best in the East. Said Tribune-man Doug Kennedy, "The Andover team, not by virtue of its won-and-lost record, but because of its showing against really tough opposition, gets the nod this year as the finest team in the Prep School Circuit." This selection was a fitting climax to a good season for a really great team.

Hampered by the loss of the Captain-elect, veteran left-halfback Charley Smith, Coach Sorota opened pre-season practice with a nucleus of ten returning lettermen. O. J. Anderson, three-year starter at left tackle, was elected Captain soon after practice began, and Dick Moses served as Manager.

Two weeks' drill before the opener was enough to fill in those vacancies which had been wide open at the outset. The first eleven, then, consisted of Jim Mead and Lou Gross at ends; O. J. Anderson and Whit Budge at tackles; Bill Rosenau and Pete Harrison at guards; Norm Nourse at center; Dick Phelps and Pete Reiner at halfbacks; Johnny Clayton at quarterback; and Rick Hudner at fullback.

The opening game, half of which was played in a torrential downpour, found the boys in Blue running rough-shod over an outclassed Tufts eleven, with Reiner, Clayton, Hudner, and Carter scoring. The power of the untried aggregation was surprising even to our most optimistic supporters. Final score: 27-0, Andover.

Next up was a hard-fighting but inexperienced Harvard B team, which found our line weight and backfield speed not to their liking. Dick Phelps and Rick Hudner shared scoring honors with two touchdowns apiece, while Pete Harwood, ex-Exeter, notched the Crimson's lone score on a solo dash. All four P. A. conversions were good, and the final score stood 28-6, Andover.

The team met its first real test when a strong Yale J. V. squad showed up the following week. In the close game, Joe Smith, P. A. '45, scored 19 points for Yale. Rick Hudner again scored twice and Hal Upjohn scored once on a pass from Dick Phelps. Final score: 20-19, Yale.

The only road trip of the season was made the next week, the squad traveling to West Point to take on the Army Plebes. Though they played well and never stopped fighting, the Blue were playing out of their league, against a team that could have beaten many college varsities. Center Pee-wee Nourse was the standout for Andover, with his fine line-backing, which piled up play after play. Score: 20-0, West Point.

CAPTAIN O. J. ANDERSON
Spirit to spare

Then the two-game losing streak was snapped convincingly when the team bounced back with a 33-0 licking of Wentworth Institute. After a somnambulant first half, the second team started things rolling, when Steve Goodhue bucked across from the two. Thereafter, every backfield scored, the Wentworth defenses crumbling under the onslaught.

The final pre-Exeter contest was played against a highly rated and powerful Mass. Maritime team. The teams were evenly matched, and after the Blue had muffed three first-period scoring opportunities with fumbles, they were forced to be content with a scoreless deadlock in the first half. Rick Hudner broke loose early in the third quarter and punched across our only score. Not to be outdone, the Middies retaliated two minutes later. Both conversions failed, and the game ended in a 6-6 tie.

Climaxing the season, the favored Blue went to Exeter November 10, to play the game for which they had been pointing all year. They took the field with a decided edge, but, as in all A-E games, odds didn't mean a thing. Though bigger and more experienced, the boys found themselves being pushed around during the first quarter by a plucky, aggressive Red team. Not until the New Hampshiremen had jumped to a 7-0 lead did Mr. Sorota's cohorts settle down and play the brand of ball of which they were capable.

Just before the end of the first half, a forty-yard Clayton-to-Gross aerial and a Hudner plunge produced our first score. Walt Horne's attempted conversion was wide, and the half-time score stood 7-6, Exeter.

Taking the field in the second half, the Blue started to click. In the third period, while we were registering two touchdowns, 100 net yards from scrimmage, and 35 yards on passes, Exeter managed to run only three plays from scrimmage. Sparked by the fine running of Dick Phelps, and the superb passing and blocking of Johnny Clayton, a 67-yard opening drive ended the Red's short-lived lead. Again the conversion was bad, Andover taking a 12-7 lead.

Two plays later, right end Jim Mead fell on an Exeter fumble on the E-42, and the game-clinching touchdown was on its way. The highlight was a 27-yard sprint by Clayton, which yielded a first down on the Exeter 0. A penalty set us back to the 9, whence Dick Phelps smashed his way through left tackle to paydirt.

Then, the game being on ice, Coach Sorota began to give his eager reserves a taste of Exeter blood, and the scoring stopped. The game had been a good one, though often tense for the Andover rooters, and the result was extremely gratifying to the fifty boys who had relinquished so much of their time and put forth such great effort to mold the fine fighting aggregation that was this year's team.

This year, the Cross-Country Team made its first appearance as a formal sport on the Hill in many years. Led by Captain Fred Pelham and coached by Mr. Shepard, the team made a good record, with a victory over Everett High School and a second place in the N. E. Interscholastic Meet.

Mr. Shepard had a difficult job in developing a team out of a few members of last year's informal squad, two milers from last Spring's track team, and new Preps of unknown quality. He stressed long jaunts through the Sanctuary and out to Prospect Hill, instead of concentrating on speed. In this manner, the squad soon developed into a well conditioned group.

The first meet was in the form of an intra-squad meet for the Faculty Cup. Among those who were rated high, were, Fred Pelham, winner of last year's cup, and Preps Dick Norton and Bob Freeman. Freeman won this meet with the good time of 12:57.

The team's first real meet was with Arlington. The latter, being a much more experienced squad, won the meet handily 18-37. Rycroft of Arlington placed first. Following this opening meet, Andover, played host in the New England Interscholastics. St. John's, Moses Brown, Exeter and Mt. Hermon were the other schools which were represented in the meet. Exeter and Mt. Hermon were favored going into the meet, and although the former won, the Andover team revealed its true merit by nosing out Mt. Hermon for second place. Mitchell and Hall placed first and second for Exeter, and Red Stoltmann took third for the hosts.

In the two meets which followed, Andover divided the honors. They were beaten again by the Red, but they came back strong to defeat Everett Vocational 15-44. Andover swept the first five places, with Stoltmann leading the pack, closely followed by Freeman, Chittick, May, and Norton in that order. J.G.C.

SOCCER

RYLEY, ANDERSON AND STEVENS
Formed a potent trio

Despite the loss of the Deerfield and Exeter games, a season's record of four wins, two ties, and two defeats shows that this year's team was above average. The squad was hampered by injuries and inexperienced players, but beginning with a nucleus of seven returning lettermen, Coach Jim Ryley was able to develop his characteristically strong team.

Beginning the season with 3-0 and 1-0 victories over Milton and Governor Dummer respectively, the team showed a lot of fight and it was evident that the new men in the forward line were going to work in well. A 1-1 tie with a strong Tufts varsity starred veteran wings Art Asbury and Frenchie Oudin and showed up fully the strength and skill of the half-backs, Howie Johnson, Otis Chandler, and George Meeks, all of whom played consistently good ball throughout the season.

Perhaps the most closely contested game of the year was the 0-0 tie with Medford High school which ran into overtime periods. It was in this game that Jim Dale, a new player, asserted himself as a fast and tricky center-forward. Harry Gruner, also new to soccer, played an expert brand of ball, and did much to keep the team going over the rough spots.

The Tilton game which followed only lowered the morale of the team since the 5-0 victory for the Blue was unimpressive when the weakness of the Tilton team was considered. The only real bright spots in a badly played contest were the spirit and skill of Harry Gruner and Bob Merchant, both of whom scored goals for the Blue.

Perhaps the most heart-breaking game was the 3-2 loss to Deerfield, a team possessing an almost invincible passing attack. In a hard-fought game the Blue succumbed, partly because of strong competition and partly because of a fluke when the ball apparently entered the Deerfield goal but was not counted for Andover. The team reasserted its power the next week, however, with a 2-1 victory over Harvard in which Scot Wheaton starred with both goals to his credit.

The Exeter game, although a disappointing 2-1 defeat, nevertheless showed the real strength and spirit of both teams. Howie Johnson played a fast and tricky game at center-half as did Jim Dale at center-forward, while full-backs Ian Taylor and Bob Tucker, next year's captain, did their usual superb job of keeping the ball away from the goal, which was tended alternately by Waldo Pratt and

FRENCHY OUDIN IN ACTION
Tufts Didn't Like Him

Russ Thomes throughout the year.

Deepest appreciation is due to Jim Ryley, who for 34 years has worked unstintingly to produce fine soccer teams and who has, at the same time, been a good friend of each of his players. Captain Dan Anderson did a fine job of keeping the team moving, and at the same time played a high grade of soccer. Manager Ben Stevens and his assistants did their best to supply scarce equipment and keep the team amused.

Although the team may not have been as good as some that have been seen on the hill in past years, it can still be safely said that everyone tried his hardest and played his best and this is what really counts. Without that sort of spirit, no team can be really successful.

This year, the Andover Basketball Team, despite its ups and downs, came through a tough schedule in grand style, as indicated by its 54-42 victory over a twice-beaten Exeter quintet. Throughout the season, Captain Hal Upjohn's play sparked and inspired his teammates when the going was toughest.

With only three returning lettermen, Coach DiClemente had quite a problem for himself at the beginning of the season. By the opening game, however, he had molded his starting five together into a smooth-working unit.

While Lou Gross and John Clayton ably held down the guard slots, the forward wall, consisting of Kim Whitney and Hal Upjohn at forwards and John Altrocchi at center, easily outclassed Dean Academy 72-37 in the opening contest. Upjohn's uncanny shots and aggressive floorplay coupled with beautiful Blue teamwork provided the easy margin of victory. In the next game with Massachusetts Maritime,

Stu Richardson showed that he was capable of a first-string berth when he contributed 19 points to lead the team to a 55-29 victory.

After losing the next four out of five games to Worcester, Tufts "B", Salem Air Base, and Cushing General—the latter two having many former college players who outclassed us both in teamwork and individual skill—Andover seemed to show improvement. They beat Brown "B," Portsmouth Marines, Boston College J.V.'s and B. U. Theological, and although they lost to a highly superior Fargo Naval Receiving Station and to the Harvard "B's," they were never outfought.

Because of their tough competition, the team was fully prepared for the Exeter game. In this fast, exciting contest, the Blue functioned smoothly, and our long, fast passes, dazzling plays, and accurate shots frequently caught the Red and Grey flat-footed. spirit of center John Clayton, who also got his share of points, and the speed and aggressiveness of forwards Upjohn, Richardson, and Whitney, earned a well-deserved victory. Playing his last game for Andover, Hal Upjohn bowed out in true style by pacing the team with 26 points, a new individual scoring mark in an Exeter basketball game.

This year offers a good illustration of what "Deke's" coaching can do to develop a man who formerly had little or no experience in basketball. Two fine examples are Otis Chandler, who prior to this year had never played basketball, and Anderson. Before the season was over, "O. J." was playing first string, his rebound work and his good shooting eye proving a great help.

Special mention should be given to Mike Suisman and Cliff Crosby, playing manager, for their spirited play as substitutes, especially during the flu epidemic which found many first-stringers in the infirmary.

Although this year's team did not establish any records and was not up to the championship caliber of last year's squad, it should be noted that Upjohn scored a season's total of 214 points, for a game average of better than 15 points. The team can be thankful for its gruelling schedule, without which they would have been lacking in the experience that enabled them to overcome the boys from New Hampshire by such a decisive margin.

Lou Gross was elected to succeed Hal Upjohn as Captain, while Jim Stockwell will replace Cliff Crosby as manager.

HOCKEY

CAPTAIN PETE REINER
Disliked Red Jerseys

The 1946 Andover Hockey Team was built around the only returning letterman from the great 1945 team, Captain Peter C. Reiner of Loudonville, N. Y. Mr. Hart D. Leavitt, in his first year as coach of the P. A. puck-chasers, was faced with the problem of building a team without a nucleus of seasoned veterans to depend on. Considering this, the season's record of 4 wins, 7 losses, and 1 tie is not too bad. It must be noted that the 1946 record is better than that of the 1944 team, which had the great first line of Art Moher, Larry Dalley, and Dick Welch. A great deal of the credit for this belongs to Mr. Leavitt, who has built the basis for a fine team next year.

When P. A. went to the Boston Skating club to play in the Prep School Tournament in January, the team was inexperienced and had had no practice. We did not begin to click until the last 20 seconds of the game with St. Mark's, when Win Allegaert netted a pass from Duke Curtis to tie the game at 2-2. Despite a powerful Andover attack during the overtime, the game ended in a deadlock. The next day, Choate outskated P. A. to the score of 5-1. But that night, the stimulus of an Exeter contest made Andover into a new team.

For two and a-half periods, P. A. held a highly-favored Exeter sextet scoreless. With just five minutes to go, Erdman scored the only goal of the game and Exeter won, 1-0. Captain Pete Reiner played a great game at defense, while Al Bernadin made 22 saves in the goal for the Blue. Exeter's Chase was equally good in the nets.

New England weather played havoc with the schedule at the beginning of the season. A game with Melrose was called at the end of the first period with the score 2-1 in our favor, and a game with Brooks was snowed out. But when the weather cleared, we beat Stoneham, last year's Greater Boston League champs by a score of 3-1. Ross, Dawson, and Curtis scored for Andover. Next, St. Paul's, eager to avenge her '45 defeat, when Andover became the first prep school team to beat her on her home ice, faced us. In the first two minutes, St. Paul's scored twice. After that, it was a scoreless tie until St. Paul's slipped a screen shot past Al Bernadin late in the game. The final score showed that the beautifully working visitors had beaten us 3-0. Goalie Bernadin and defenseman John Rogers starred for Andover.

COACH AND MANAGER
A Smoothly Run Outfit

After a defeat at the hands of Medford 6-2, the team faced Winchester. The game was marked by roughness on both sides, ten penalties being handed out. Andover showed its usual trait of coming from behind in the third period, as Roome, Dawson, and Gruner scored to beat Winchester 4-3. Harvard then gave P. A. its worst beating of the year, 6-0.

The Exeter ice was soft and slow as we faced the Red on February 9. Al Bernadin, playing about three quarters of the game, made the amazing total of thirty-three saves. But P. A. was out-played and Exeter won a second time, 4-1, Fred Fortmiller scoring our only goal on a pass from Pete Reiner. After losing to Rindge Tech 3-1, Andover came from behind, scoring four in the last seventeen minutes to beat Belmont Hill 5-4. Hank Ross's rampage with 2 goals and 2 assists made him the season's leading scorer over Gruner, Dawson, Allegaert, and Roome.

Fred Fortmiller was elected captain for 1947 to replace Pete Reiner, and Albert F. MacLean was elected manager, succeeding Joel P. Nixon.

This past season, the P. A. Swimming Team, led by Don Lazo and managed by Francis Papen, experienced a much better than average season. Ably coached by "Rocky" Dake and "Jack" Johnson, the team won four and lost three while swimming against tough college competition.

POINTWINNERS LAZO AND MACLANE
Always Strong Firsts

It was an experienced Blue team, headed by veterans Lazo, Garner, Flues, and Vroman and bolstered by newcomer Jim McLane that defeated Gardner High 43-23 in the first meet. The squad was hit hard in the next two weeks by the flu and lost consecutively to Dartmouth and Brown.

The team was at full strength the following week, however, for its meet with the Yale J. V. at New Haven. McLane's double was not quite enough to turn the tide, however, and P. A. lost in the last relay 35-31.

The next two meets were easy wins for a much-improved and very determined Blue squad. Harvard was handily erased 54-12, and in the last pre-Exeter meet, Deerfield was drowned 39½-26½.

Then followed a week of gruelling work for the Dakemen, each man taking a time trial every day before he swam his 100 lengths. By Saturday, Coach Dake had his men in top shape, ready to win the A-E swimming meet for the first time in three years.

No one man can be singled out as having starred in that meet, for it was a question of every man's giving his best in contributing to a marvellous 37-29 win over the Redmen.

The real high-light of the season was Junior Jim McLane, smashing both the Andover and Andover-Exeter records in the 200-yard freestyle in the Exeter meet. Captain Lazo was undefeated in the back-stroke all year, and he swam well in the relays.

The prospects for the team next year are only fair, with but three returning lettermen. You may be sure, however, that a team captained by Reeves Hart and managed by Bill Davis will uphold the spirit of friendliness and sportsmanship shown by the '46 squad.

PRENTISS GRAPPLES
Ugh!

Ably led by Captain Lewis Bancroft, a powerful Andover Wrestling Team with four returning lettermen defeated Perkins Institute 29-0 in its first match of the year. Following this excellent start, the team proceeded by defeating Weymouth High 24-5.

With two members of the team in the infirmary, the matmen were nosed out 16-14 by Milton Academy.

The next week, Andover returned to winning form by edging out Roxbury Latin 18-17. For the next two weeks, the grapplers continued along the victory road by defeating Harvard 19-9, and Needham High 19-3.

In the climax of the season at Exeter there was an expectant group of Andover men present. In the first bout, Lee Nutt tied his man to set the score at 2-2. Bob Gordon starred in his usual way to put the Blue ahead 5-2. In a close match, Alan Sawyer lost, making the score 5-5. At this point, Lew Bancroft won his match and set the Blue ahead 8-5. John Macomber, in a thrilling match, advanced P. A.'s lead to 11-5. The next two matches went to Exeter, when Fred Doyle, out for a month with a head injury, and "Body" Wilkinson lost, tying the score at 11-11. The final match in the heavyweight with Dick Prentiss proved to be a heartbreaker, the decision and the meet going to Exeter.

FENCING

MANAGER BOB BARNETT
"They're Only So High."

After two seasons of inactivity, a three-weapon varsity fencing team was reorganized this winter.

Coach Barss was ably assisted by Dr. Hasenclever and Mr. Heintzelman. When Captain Larry Barss, a foil and sabre star, graduated in February, foil-man Ken Vincent was elected Captain. Manager Barnett did an outstanding job.

In the season's first meet with Worcester

Academy, the team was defeated by the more experienced Worcester squad. The P. A. team defeated Exeter in an informal meet but dropped another close meet to Worcester. The powerful Exeter foil-men beat the P. A. team, but the defeat of Thayer Academy in an informal meet successfully closed the season.

Epée-star Bob Johnson was elected captain for next year, when the fencing season should be thoroughly successful.

BASEBALL

With a nucleus of eight returning letterman, Coach "Flop" Follansbee started practice in the Cage during the Winter term. Captain Bill Wood, outfielders Johnny Clayton and Walt Horne, and pitcher Dick Phelps were the only regulars from last season to come back. Thus the team needed a great deal of building before it could expect to function smoothly.

The practices in the Cage were mainly on fundamentals of fielding, base-running, and pitching. The large squad which came out during the first few weeks was soon cut to twenty candidates. Several major league players worked out with the squad in order to start their Spring training somewhat earlier than usual.

Early in April, the team was able to use the diamond. A practice game was scheduled with Central Catholic, in which the Blue triumphed 3-2 by coming up with two tallies in the ninth inning. As the opening game of the season approached, many positions were still to be decided upon. Ross and Allegaert were alternating at third base, as were Warren and Crowe at second. Rublee and Crosby were at shortstop, and Lower Harry Dunlap was holding down first base. Infielders Lackey and Remis were temporarily out of action with injuries. Phelps, Lanes, Horne, and Heffernan were doing the hurling, while Rosenau, assisted by Crosby and Friday, was behind the plate. The outfield consisted of Wood, Clayton, and Anderson playing regularly, and Horne playing right field when not pitching.

CAPTAIN BILL WOOD

On April 17, Dr. Fuess threw out the first ball, and the team opened the season against Dorchester. The Blue won 4-2 by virtue of a three-run outburst in the fifth frame. Walt Horne held the opposition to seven hits and collected two hits himself.

Rindge Tech was vanquished 13-3 under Dick Phelps' pitching and Andover's hitting, assisted by nine walks in six innings, as Phelps struck out his thirteenth victim to end the game.

The Blue next faced a strong Everett ball team, which was too much for Follansbee's boys. Scoring four times in the eighth frame, Everett smothered a ninth inning rally to inflict the first defeat of the season on Andover, 4-2. Although the Blue had men on base every inning except the first, it was only after Johnny Clayton had smashed a long triple to left-center field that the home team was able to score.

A game with Hyde Park was cancelled because of rain, but two practice games were scheduled for later in the week with the Lawrence Millionaires of the New England League. The batteries were exchanged between the two teams, and the games proved valuable experience for the Andover ball club.

MANAGER MIKE SUISMAN

On April 24, Andover nosed out Harvard J. V., 11-9, in the worst-played game thus far. Phelps walked a man every inning until he was relieved by Fred Lanes in the sixth. While the team committed five errors in the field, at bat they looked far from impressive in gathering only four hits. In eight innings, twelve batters were struck out, and the Blue gained the victory mostly on the misplays committed by Harvard. The one encouraging part of the game lay in the fact that Andover came from behind three times to win.

At the time this is written, the team appears to have a good chance of taking Exeter on June 1. Coach Flop is taking great pains to correct the errors of commission and omission made by the players so far, and, under the leadership of Bill Wood, the spirited ball club should really show its worth in the remaining games.

PRACTICE TEE

Golf was again organized this Spring, after a three-year absence from the Hill. Coached by Mr. Brown, the squad at the beginning of the season consisted of about forty students. Since many golfers improved during the Spring and were able to challenge the skill of the starting six, the first team did not remain the same from match to match.

The season's score was not too bad considering the competition and the lack of previous tournament experience. Matches were played against Swampscott, Belmont, Needham, Howard, Exeter, and a team composed of faculty sharpshooters.

Games and practice took place on the golf course of the Andover Golf Club at Shawsheen, where the players took out temporary memberships for the season.

TRACK

CO-CAPTAIN PARADISE
Loves to Run

CO-CAPTAIN NOURSE
Weight-Lifting in His Spare Time

Headed by Co-Captains Skip Paradise and Norm Nourse, Andover's Winter Track Team smashed its way through a record-shattering season to crush Exeter 63-18. Thus, a new record was set for total points scored by one team in an A-E Winter meet.

The team faced many first-class collegiate aggregations but succumbed to only three, the most powerful being a Dartmouth team which finished only twelve points ahead of us. Individually speaking, however, the season was extremely successful in developing a great many stars. Co-Captain Nourse continually raised the School and Cage records in the twelve-pound shotput. The final distance now stands at 53'10", while in the 16-pound shot, he set new records with a heave of 45' 4½". It was a common sight to see Co-Captain Skip Paradise tie the Cage record in the 40-yard dash, for he did it in nearly every meet. He was also outstanding in the 300-yard dash, with a best time of 33.9 seconds.

Red Stoltmann, a Senior Prep who had never run before, led the 600- and 1000-yard men, sometimes running both events in the same meet. In the 600, he broke the School record and established his own new mark of 1:16.1. Ted Carter also joined the ranks of the record-smashers when he ran the 40-yard low hurdles in 4.9. Tex Hubbard held the admiration of track fans as he repeatedly cleared the high jump bar at better than six feet. His 5' 11½" jump in the Exeter meet set a new meet record. Tom Aikens was also a good point-gatherer with a consistent 11-foot pole vault.

But a team cannot rely exclusively on its first-place men to win a meet. There must be others who can follow up with seconds and thirds to clinch a victory, and it is in this that P. A. developed many strong one-two combinations. Gov Edge teamed with Nourse in the shotput; Ed Gordon followed Carter in the hurdles; Rick Hudner was a strong second behind Paradise in the 300; and George Appel and Bob Lasly supported Aikens in the pole vault.

Highlight of the Winter Season, and a preview of the following week's resounding victory, was the B.A.A. mile relay, which found our four-man team easily out-distancing the Red and Gray in better time than that turned in by most of the colleges entered.

The Spring Season held such prospects for a good team that the New York Herald Tribune's man Doug Kennedy was prompted to remark that, "Andover is the team to beat in track." The only weak spot seemed to lie in the distance runs, although Otis Chandler's first mile-run in the Harvard meet raised our hopes there considerably.

In the running events, Skip Paradise and Red Stoltmann were sure winners in the 100, 220, 440, and 880, doubling-up when the occasion demanded it. However, as we went to press, there was little new material to add depth to these events. The hurdles were especially strong, with Carter, Gordon, and John Rogers and new men developing rapidly.

Our real power, however, lay in the field events. Nourse and Edge again shone in the shotput, with Nourse also entering in the discus. Whit Budge and Frank Bradley were our other two discus entrants, and the trio swept that event in our Spring meet against Harvard J. V. Zoot Neuhoff, Pete Harrison, and Budge formed a potent hammer team, and Ned Mulligan and Myles Chute, with Lower Bill Seffens, hurled the javelin. The Aikens-Appel-Lasly triplet again commanded the pole vault, while Stu Richardson led the broad jumpers with a 20' 9 $\frac{3}{4}$ " leap against Harvard.

MANAGER CHUTE

Again this year, Coach Ray Shepard has turned out a championship team, of which the school and the Class of '46 can well be proud. He was assisted by Steve Sorota in the dashes, Ed Flanagan in the weights, Freddie Watt in the pole vault, and Pen Hallowell in the distance runs.

CAPTAIN RICK HUDNER
Four Years on the First Team

The Lacrosse Team got off to an early start this year, with Sunday afternoon practice sessions in the cage during the Winter term. About thirty men turned out for this pre-season work, Coach Littleton wasting no time in getting the team moulded into shape. The squad as a whole was way ahead in stick handling and in plays when it reported at the beginning of the Spring Term.

With more than a full team of returning lettermen, the prospects of the team looked as good as, if not better than, last year's powerful squad. Leading the Blue this year was Captain Richard Hudner, who sparked the team both defensively and offensively. In the attack, "Scottie" Wheaton, Sammy Stowell, Freddy Fortmiller, and Jack Macomber all looked good. The defense, sparked by lettermen Jim Mead and Bill Roome, helped keep the opponents' goals to a minimum. In the goal, Gus Forrest, new at that position, did a bang-up job.

With the first game only a week away from the day practice started outdoors, Coach Littleton started right in to train and give the fundamentals to the squad. By putting the team through long practices and hard scrimmages, he managed to get the first team into fairly good shape before the first game with the Boston

Lacrosse Club, but to no avail, as the team went down in defeat before a strong visiting team composed of ex-college and all-American stars. Although the Blue managed to keep the ball a good part of the time, they were unable to penetrate the good defense to score often. The opponents, visibly in poor condition, made use of their superior stick handling to rack up nine goals to Andover's two. Coming back into the game in the third period, the team really began to play a hard driving game. Stick handling seemed to improve, plays checked, our defense stiffened, and we began to score. Wheaton started the band wagon rolling as he netted one early in the period, to be followed quickly by Oudin, and then two by Captain Hudner, followed by Wheaton. But Andover was too far behind to catch up, as the game ended with Boston Lacrosse Club ahead, 14-7.

The team played well all season, gaining the experience necessary for their final encounter with Exeter. At this writing, it is yet to be played, but, with the fine spirit of Captain Hudner, the excellent coaching of Earle Littleton and "Smoky" Mortenson, and the capable managing of Barney Barton, there can be no doubt that Exeter will know it has been in a ball game.

TENNIS

CAPTAIN HAL UPJOHN
Always Calm and Cool

With five lettermen out of eight returning, the tennis squad is looking forward to almost as successful a season as last year's. Captain Hal Upjohn, Harry Gruner, Lou Gross, Dick Lincoln, and Neil Chapin came back to fill the first five places, in that order. Don Blackmer and Lee Nutt are fighting for the sixth position.

The doubles combinations are indefinite as we go to press, and the only sure pair are Gruner and Gross, undefeated last season. Upjohn has been playing with Chapin in the second position, and Lincoln and Nutt are at present the third team, but Coach Pat Kelley intends to try out other combinations.

The first scheduled match, one of two with the Harvard Graduates, was rained out, as was the Harvard match later in the season. Wind and rain have, as usual, slowed the team down. The Bowdoin Varsity was smeared in the first contest of the season by a score of 9-0. The Harvard Grads, unbeaten in ten years until they met last year's team, then took us over the ropes, 7-1, on a cold, raw day. Neil Chapin, at number five, was the only winner for the Blue, taking his match 6-3, 6-4. Upjohn, number one, was beaten 6-3, 6-0, by one of the ranking men's singles players in New England, and Harry Gruner also met his match, losing 6-1, 6-2. Lou Gross played well, but was taken 7-5, 6-4, and Don Blackmer, although winning his first set, 6-2, was unable to keep up the pace and finally lost, 6-3, 11-9. In the doubles, Gruner and Gross lost their first match in two years, and Upjohn and Chapin were beaten in three sets.

In the third match of the season, Winchester was whitewashed 9-0. At this writing, the netmen were looking forward to matches with Exeter and Deerfield, the latter being considered the best prep school team in New England.

CLASS OFFICERS

As we returned in the Fall to the first peacetime Andover we had known, we were met with the responsibilities that arise as we mature. More and more of us were given positions on the varsity teams, and not a few from our ranks distinguished themselves in this capacity. The restlessness of the first few weeks was broken by open warfare with the Lower, but the presence of a certain car on the soccer field once again dampened our overactive spirits. Before we realized it, the Exeter game was upon us. Our efforts contributed much to the defeat of the Red and Gray, both on the field on in the stands. With the Fall Athletic Banquet, the term drew to a close. Johnny Clayton was chosen to lead next year's Football eleven, with Sam Stowell as Manager. At the same time, the Soccer team elected Bob Tucker Captain and John Monroe Manager.

A typical New England Winter greeted us as we stepped from the B. & M. at the end of our vacation. Florida suntans all disappeared as the time wore on. No big blizzards took us to the Lawrence railroad yards this season, but those on the Hockey team got plenty of practice playing in the snow. This was supplemented with some fights on the West Quad, and a few windows were shattered here and there. The Uppers were well represented on the athletic teams. Lou Gross did an excellent job on the basketball court and was elected as next year's Captain. Jim Stockwell is to be the Manager. In the Cage, Ted Carter was kept pretty busy breaking those records he could get his spikes into. On Rabbits Pond, Win Allegaert, Neil Chapin, and Fred Fortmiller were the outstanding Uppers. Fred is next year's Captain and is to be assisted by Forbes McLean as Manager. Bill Stuckey is to be congratulated as next year's Phillipian editor.

The Spring Term has not progressed far enough to have any predictions made, but judging from the past two, it ought to be very successful.

LOWER MIDDLELERS

CLASS OFFICERS

As we returned to the Hill once again last fall we, the class of 1948, had a new lease on Andover's ways. No longer were we considered just "preps"; now we were hardened veterans of Andover life, ready to face the tough battle ahead and full of advice to "those preps." Also, the suffering of the "preps" changed, in our eyes, from uncalled-for bullying to necessary toughening-up of the new boys. However, after the first week of classes, the '48-ers settled down in their new dormitories and started living a less restricted life than that of the previous year at Will Hall and Rockwell. We were thrilled at the success of our football team, which boasted seven Lower squad members and one Lower letterman. The class morale was generally lifted by a great victory in football against Exeter. After this, the term sped to a close and we went home, satisfied with the first term of our Lower Middle year.

When we returned to school from vacation with a new vigor, a snowball rivalry and general war which broke out was settled with the outcome showing our triumph over the Juniors. Once again, Lowers made athletic names for themselves, with lettermen in hockey, wrestling, swimming and fencing, while our athletic teams had their due share of victories. But the Winter Term, a short one, went as quickly as the snow, and we soon found ourselves in the middle of final exams again.

The Spring Term is sure to be full of interest, with members of the class competing in varsity sports, and other members due to make records in the scholastic fields with prize exams and essays coming up. So we look forward to our Upper Middle year to come, which will put us a long way from our entry as immature Juniors, a year ago.

JUNIORS

CLASS OFFICERS
E. Smith, R. Q. Anderson, Linn

The Year of 1945 was, without a doubt, momentous. The Japanese signed the armistice aboard the Missouri, and the Class of '49 declared war by invading Rockwell and Will Hall. While the football team shed blood against the Army Plebes, and the Lacrosse team crushed Governor Dummer, we Juniors fought everybody.

At first, the Seniors with their superior size and numbers became our most hated, or rather most feared, enemies. Most of '49 were not easily conquered but frequently chastised by the deadly weapon of, "Hey Prep!" Some of them occasionally broke through with a burst of kindness, however, and would lend us their davenport to hide behind while walking to the Commons. But, of course, our superior support ended all this at the A-E game.

Having no more Seniors to run away from bravely, we, still as pugnacious, began to fight among ourselves. This civil war came to a decisive head at the Will Hall-

Rockwell football game, a battle soon to be included in the curriculum of Ancient History. Flaring, daring, tearing, E. Gehring Smith led the Rockwellians to defeat (but not conquer) Buddy Lynn's dauntless men from Will Hall.

Athletically, we of '49 are the best; scholastically, we rank high, but at throwing snowballs, we are unsurpassed. With this in mind, and with snow on the ground, we turned our pugnacity to the unsuspecting class of '48. These we vanquished easily when they were not aided by the Uppers.

And so the Spring Term came and went, and we abided ourselves more quietly. Now we are prepared to leave the Hill. The bewilderment is gone; we have made our mark on everyone around us. We are a little older, a little more united and a little bit stronger. And we of '49 shall return next year to defend our position on the roll of P. A. history.

FEATURES

To Dr. Alston Hurd Chase, without whose valuable advice and genuine interest this book would have been impossible, this special section is affectionately dedicated.

Sometime during the school year of 1945-46, the exact date of which is still unknown, there sprang full-grown from the head of a P.A. Senior who bears the unusual name of Jones a young man with baggy pants and a blank expression. The child's creator promptly christened him Sammy Phillips and, desiring that the blessed event receive due publicity, he began to insert pictures of him in the Phillipian. These cartoons became a weekly feature of the paper and Sammy grew so popular that he came to be a real character to us here on the Hill. He seemed to be one of us, typifying all the little incidents that make Andover more than a school—but he was particularly close to the class of '46, since he came with, and is going with, us. To us, he is a real character, and there is a reason for this.

Just like the army, Andover is a world in itself which no outsider can possibly enter. It is not that we have willfully placed a barrier there, but one has to live and breathe Andover to be a part of it. Otherwise, it is impossible to capture completely the language, the customs, the spirit—the very heart of the school. Sammy knows us and we him, as no one else ever will.

Sammy is the Class of '46, and it is for this reason that we have chosen to center this year's feature section around him. If it is not good, it is the fault of the author, and we apologize for our shortcomings. Certainly, our subject matter is good enough.

THE EDITOR

In the small town of Thudevillle, Lawn Gyland, there was born to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Coy Phillips 3rd, a fine baby boy. People were all atwitter about this great event in the community, for it had been some twenty years since a baby had been born there. (That figure, of course, does not include the boy who was sent to reform school at eighteen months for beating the Mayor at chess. People never mentioned him.) The doctor attending the birth was particularly pleased with young Sammy.

As he brought the child in to its mother he remarked, "Ah, Mrs. Phillips, this should be a proud day for you. You have a fine bouncing boy." And just to prove it, he executed a difficult three-cushion shot off the wall, dropping Sammy in the corner pocket. The child merely shook his head and looked at the doctor as if to indicate that any fool would know that he had played the shot wrong. His father beamed proudly, and from that day on, Sammy's career was cut out for him.

The townspeople predicted a dismal future for Sammy. Their exact words were, "He's going to be just like his old man," and they were right. As a child, however, Sammy gave signs of overshadowing his illustrious father, and the elder Phillips feared the worst. The turning point came on that fatal day during Sammy's third year in the first grade when he brought home a report card showing that he had an honor in Basket-Weaving I. Mr. Phillips feared he had failed in his duties as a father, and he called the boy aside and gave him a stern lecture. "Son," he said, "I suppose I'm a failure. I should have told you some things long ago, but I didn't, and it may be too late, now."

"Aw, Pop," Sammy whined, "you're not gonna go through that stuff about the birds and bees again, are you?"

"No, son, it's more important than that." He paused, clearing his throat. "We Phillipses are a proud lot. We have our traditions, which date back for generations, and we are quite as proud of them as the Cabots and Lodges are of theirs. You have a heritage to uphold, son, and you are letting it down. For generations, no Phillips has ever got an honor in a course, and now you have gone and broken a tradition centuries old.

"Son, I want you to realize the error of your ways and be certain that you never get an honor again."

Sammy bowed his head in apology. He was thoroughly ashamed of himself, and he apparently took the lecture seriously. From that day forward, he never came close to an honor.

After thirteen years of steady and rewarding labor, Sammy finished grade school and was ready to go away to prep school. The elder Phillips had been Class of '04 at Andover, and so he decided that his son should follow in his footsteps, much to the distress of Headmaster Fuse and those faculty members who remembered Sammy Sr. It had taken the concentrated effort of twenty-five instructors and ten trustees to push him through, but they managed to do it in slightly less than ten years, thereby establishing a new speed record for a Phillips. Besides this, they were reluctant to accept a nineteen-year-old Junior. However, after much discussion and debate, Sammy was enrolled under Plan Q, which called for completion of the required work in eighteen terms instead of the usual twelve.

When the announcement of his entrance was made at a faculty meeting, Dr. Fuse felt called upon to explain the situation. Some of the older men were threatening to resign. The year was 1940.

"Gentlemen," he began, "we are in a trying period of history. All Europe is in chaos, and the shadows of war are spreading toward our own shores. As Calvin Coolidge once said, 'Things are tough all over,' and even though we are free from conflict, we have our own little problems. We must face them with the courage and determination of the men who founded this school."

He unbuttoned his coat, buttoned it again, and went on.

"You, gentlemen, are educators. You have put away worldly interests to devote your lives to the furthering of knowledge. There come crises in our profession as in others, and we are confronted with one now.

"I hope you will stick by me with chins up and shoulders back. To quote again from Coolidge, 'We gotta stick together or we're cooked'." He paused. "Samuel Coy Phillips is arriving in Andover today."

An excited murmur ran through the room, as did the Director of Admissions, hotly pursued by the rest of the faculty wielding blunt instruments.

So it was that Sammy came to P. A. His arrival was greeted by several collapses among the citizenry, as well as a few scattered suicides. The stationmaster, an old gaffer who has been here for centuries, saw the tag on Sammy's trunk and immediately requested to transfer to Ballardvale. Rumor hath it that Mr. Fitzpatrick, who was to be the boy's housemaster, was unable to attend his spoken Ubangi classes for two weeks. He fell ill on the day Sammy arrived, and the attending physician said the sickness was prolonged by a lack of desire to recover.

Sammy got off the train that day, his pockets bulging with money he had won from unsuspecting Seniors at Blackjack.

Seeing the odd-looking little character looking out the window, the veterans had decided they had a perfect sucker. Possibly they were right, but they made one big mistake. They played with Sammy's deck. The smart Ales were begging for mercy before the end of the trip, but the little fellow went on unconcernedly dealing Aces and Jacks to himself.

Seeing that there was no brass band to meet him, Sammy reasoned that the gravity of the international situation prevented any such displays. He noticed a shiny black sedan parked near the station and decided that the reception committee, not wishing to seem conspicuous, had thoughtfully sent a car. He threw his bags in the back seat and climbed in. A man in a gray homburg and pince nez approached. Sammy stuck his head out the window.

"Hey, driver, hurry up, willya? I haven't got all day to wait for you." The man blinked several times and started to say something. Sammy cut him off. "Been working here long, bub? Well, ya better look out or ya won't be working here much longer. I got influence around here, and I'll have you cooled if you're not careful." The man was too dumbfounded to speak.

"And now take me to Rockwell House and be quick about it. I have to freshen up a bit before I receive the faculty. You can tell Dr. Fuse I'll see him in the morning."

"I should say you will," answered the driver.

"And by the way, in case I want you again, how can I reach you?"

"Oh, it's very easy. Just call Andover 413 and ask for Jack."

And that's how Sammy happened to get on "Pro" the second day he was here. The amazing part of it is that he stayed on for six years, an all-time record for the course.

His first years in Andover were trying ones both for Sammy and for Andover. He soon discovered the scientific method of passing a course—spending all evening writing letters and all day petting masters' dogs. He had to abandon this technique in three years, however, after Mr. Fitzpatrick's animal, a large Afghan named Wilberforce, took a sizable chunk out of his arm. Forced to turn toward other devices, he found that masters' daughters had the same effect. He found himself enamored, at various times, with the daughter of his Latin, English, Math, and Linoleum-Cutting teachers. The last of these was perhaps the most attractive, but he gave her up because she had a nervous habit of tracing designs on his back with a rotary-knife while they danced. He stayed through four sportcoats with her, but he left when clothes became scarce.

The war hit Saminy hard, as it did so many Americans. He said goodbye to his forty-two long sportcoats and his Havana Supremos, and, for a time, he even sacrificed the pleats in his trousers. That, however, was only temporary. He soon found a place where he could get them, no questions asked, and he quickly began to patronize that black market. The greatest sacrifice of all, though, was that he could not drive his low-slung 12-cylinder, super-charged Mercedes-Benz during the week and had to walk to a few of his classes. Athletically, Sammy distinguished himself as a member of the J. V. Polo and Ping Pong Teams and as Manager of the Varsity Fencing Team. Altogether, he won fifteen sets of numerals and one A (for fencing), an achievement equalled by few. Of course, he had a slight advantage in that he was here for six terms longer than most, but the record is nonetheless admirable. The story of how he happened to win the Fencing Managership is interesting and bears mention, even in such a brief biography.

It seems that one afternoon, while functioning as a member of the Closed Closet (a subversive counterpart of Open Door, whose job it is to make visiting Exeter teams feel as unwelcome as possible and to make their visits generally miserable), Sammy chanced upon his Exonian cousin, Mort, at a fencing meet. Mort was observing that Sammy had best beware, or the New Hampshire woodsmen would be after him for his undercover activities, to which Sammy replied, "Oh, I'll manage a defense."

Hearing this, Mr. Angelo Manette, the fencing coach turned and exclaimed, "Youse manach-a da fanse! 'At's planny hokay! We-sa need a manacher puddy bad." He handed Sammy a damaged foil, and half an orange, and the lad thereby attained his pinnacle of respect and importance on the Hill.

In the Fall Term of his first Upper year (he had three of them), Sammy was bid to Phi Upsilon, disaffectionately known on the Hill as P.U. With him in this outstanding group were such campus notables as Ames Cutting IV, Joe Falango, Booze Bullfinch, and Rothrock T. Wilbur. It was easy to see that the boy was in good company, because three of these men were elected to the Schlamilian Dishonor Society, for which the membership qualifications were extremely rigid. They involved having absolutely no character, exceptionally poor qualities of leadership, and incredibly low scholarship. Sammy almost made it, but it was revealed that he had once held the Beanery door open for a Master, and he was disqualified.

These boys were principally distinguished for their work in organizing the PUYRC (Phi Upsilon Young Rumheads Club), which had been instrumental in gaining faculty recognition of Tom Collins Day, a day set aside each year for Memorial Services for that famous Irishman who has contributed so much to American Life.

Somehow or other, Sammy was allowed to live long enough to become a Senior, although no one yet knows why. The Senior year being, as it is, the making or breaking of an Andover man, he decided that he would give his all for the old school and support its every measure. This quite frankly worried most of his acquaintances, who considered him more of a menace as a proponent than as an antagonist. They feared his every move, and, for a change, they were right.

When athletics began in the Fall of 1945, Sammy reported, for the sixth year, to the polo field, a candidate for the Varsity. The team was faced with a tough schedule, including a grudge match with Ethel Walker's, and Coach Hollowhead wanted to waste no time in getting his squad in shape. He was so determined to have a good team that his first move was to cut Sammy to the J. V.

Undaunted, Sammy carried on in true Phillips fashion, giving his all for the good of the team. Some of his ponies were still suffering from hangovers acquired during the Summer season at Oyster Bay (also on Lawn Gyland), but he soon worked that out of them, having them in fine fettle for the opening game with Dana Hall. Sammy displayed the spirit and dash of a real ten-goal man (Oyster Bay style), but the weight and experience, not to mention the height and waist measurements, of the Dana girls were too much for him to cope with. His team was edged out, 137 to 1. The rest of the season was nearly disastrous, as they lost to the Bradford J. V., Athol High, and Fessenden. After the last game, Captain Phillips was presented with the Klochstopfer Key for the man who has done least for athletics at Andover, an award, we might add, which he richly deserved.

His athletic endeavors at an end, Sammy turned to politics. His first political venture was as leader of the popular Better Coffee in the Beanery movement. He was singularly successful in this attempt, holding several conferences with Mr. Loot, the establishment's Chief Coffee-maker and Vice-President in Charge of Apple Pan Dowdy. From these sessions came a compromise agreement in which Mr. Loot agreed to start making his coffee with hot water and to make a new batch every week. The improvement was so pronounced that some one actually drank a cup of the stuff. Sammy was overjoyed to hear of this, but his satisfaction was cut short by the news that the poor lad, an innocent little Junior, had been rushed to the hospital with an extreme case of delirium tremens shortly after performing his noble deed.

Christmas Vacation came soon, and Sammy repaired to his family's Park Avenue home, a small brownstone affair of some fifteen stories. Hard times were closing in on the Phillipses, and only the lower fourteen floors were in active operation, but Sammy was not one to be cowed by such exigencies. He decided to be a stout fellow and attend the thirty-eight parties to which he had been invited, as if nothing were wrong. There are those who might say that he carried this idea too far, however, since he saw daylight only twice during the whole time—the day he arrived and the day he left. The strenuous life took its toll on him, though, and he began to look even more like a little mole than usual.

At one of the many parties of the gay Christmas Season, Sammy met his first true love, a little gift from Miss Porter's (for young ladies) named Iris. They met when Sammy helped her disengage her dress from an Allied Flag, at the Ball of the same name. The scene was indeed a touching one, he in full dress with the air of a cavalier, and she in the Nicaraguan flag with the look of a wet petunia.

It was love at first sight. They went together to all the big affairs, and Sammy showered her with presents. The Stork, El Morocco, Sullivan's Saloon, Charley's Bar and Grill—they went to all the best places and were seen with all the worst people. Their friends were beginning to talk. But the gay romance ended abruptly when Iris, like so many of Miss Porter's young ladies, eloped with a hosiery salesman from Tenafly, New Jersey. It was a bitter blow to Sammy to think that he had lost out to a Gotham Gold Stripe man. For a while, he even contemplated suicide, but he felt that the loss to the world would be too great and took to drink instead.

He went on a chocolate malted jag. For three days, he did nothing but sit in a drugstore and drink chocolate malteds, until he became known as the Don Birnam of Walgreen's. Lost Weekend, which was playing at the theatre next door, was forced to closed, as people flocked to see the real thing. He drank so much milk that Borden's offered to let him replace Elsie, but Malteds Malevolent, a society for curing maltomania, stepped in and halted the binge, when they heard that the lad had pawned his gold-plated yo-yo to buy the foul concoctions. He was carried home, ordered to rest, and put on a strict rye and ginger ale diet.

Sammy was a mere shell of his former self when he came back from that vacation. His experience had sobered him completely, so that he was barely able to play number two man on the Ping Pong Team. He struck up an acquaintance with his history teacher's daughter, which resulted in his passing for the term, but, aside from that, the Winter was uneventful.

During Spring Vacation, he went to Cuba, where he found the language barrier negligible. He learned the Spanish for bar (bar) and Tom Collins (Tom Collins), found the bartenders agreeable, and his vacation was set. He was quite a sensation as an Ambassador of Ill Will at all the parties given by the diplomatic corps, running the entire gamut of social blunders. This reached its climax when he commented to a stranger on the dullness of an American Embassy party, only to find that the recipient of the remark was his host. Shortly thereafter, he returned home.

Spring and the flowers and the birds came to Andover, finding our hero, along with the rest of the school, doing nothing and doing it very well. Occasionally, he would feel called upon to open a book, but, whenever the urge seized him, he would quell it manfully. He put away his cordovans and tweeds and brought out his white buckskins and seersuckers, signifying to the townspeople that Winter was over. His exercise was confined to meditation in the sanctuary on the oneness of man and the Sox' chances for the pennant.

Memorial Day came and went, and then final exams. Sammy stumbled and groped his way through finals, knowing nothing, but somehow he passed everything. He went to the Prom with Cuddles, a new flame, starred in the Class Day Play, and waited, like the rest of us, for Commencement Day.

On June 7, 1946, Sammy graduated, amid loud huzzahs.

Of course, he did not actually graduate. That is, none of the diplomas handed out bore the name Samuel Coy Phillips IV. Yet all of them did, only you couldn't see it, for Sammy graduated, in spirit, two hundred and twenty-five times. Sammy Phillips is not a person—he is more than that. He is the spirit of generations of Andover men who have undergone the great joys and the petty annoyances which characterize Andover life. He is the empty feeling in us on Commencement Day, the time we shall spend in reminiscing, the long hours already spent on history notes. He is so many things that it is difficult not to be sentimental about him, but we do not want to be sentimental. We only want to express our thanks—gratitude for a great experience, perhaps the greatest of our lives. On behalf of Sammy, we thank you, gentlemen, from the bottom of our hearts.

COURIERS and CARGO CARRIERS of the Caribbean

DIPLOMATS and businessmen, travelers by the thousands, know these white ships well. Since the turn of the century it has been an Inter-American custom to travel the Caribbean via the Great White Fleet. Yet the ships of the Fleet are equally well known for their fast, reliable cargo service. They have played a prominent part in developing a healthy, 2-way interchange of commodities between Middle America and the United States.

During the war the Great White Fleet has been devoted entirely to government service. Now regular sailings are being gradually resumed over long established Caribbean routes.

“Where there is no vision,
the people perish”

A wise man said it a long time ago.

Today, more than ever, the world knows he was right.

Knows that jobs, prosperity, new materials, new techniques, are the end result of scientific research—and of the vision that keeps the research workers in action.

The mighty accomplishments of men of science through the war are more than matched by the peacetime research in American industry—the chemical industry, the electrical industry, the glass industry, the steel industry, every field which makes use of the scientist and his vision.

It is the longtime objective of putting more things within the reach of more people by lowering costs, of making work easier, of making life more comfortable, of contributing to the efficiency of American home and business that is at the heart and core of every Du Pont operation.

Research cannot do the whole job. Engineers must build the plants that translate research dreams into chemical reality. Management, service departments, laboratories, foremen, the girl watching the trembling needle of a gauge—all are partners in production.

But through all their work—for all our benefit—runs the single objective—to share in the creation of a better America. To that end we are expanding research, increasing our scientific staff, multiplying our plant production program, creating new jobs, developing new techniques, new materials—dedicating our entire research and production facilities to—

In this cause there can be no armistice, for if democracy is to be more than a word in the language, men everywhere must understand its meaning and must stand guard against its enemies—regimentation, ignorance, intolerance.

To this purpose, The Times each day rededicates itself that it may deserve its heritage—freedom of the press.

The Challenge of A M E R I C A

Young men all over America are about to finish another year of education. Soon this phase of their lives will be behind them. Not that their education will be completed. For those who determine to be leaders, that will never be.

The challenge of America is for leaders. America needs leaders, needs leadership! In the years beginning now, She needs leaders as perhaps never before. 'God, give us men, tall men who live above the fog.'

World War II ended an era. The whirlpool of war sucked into its whirling vortex not only the Nations, not only men in their millions but the very ideas of Nations and of men. Its violent action displaced things as they were. They will never be so placed again.

As the storm subsides a new era begins. We start again from here. The problems cry for solution.

America, in her great need, looks to her youth. America needs leaders! Are you one? Are you getting ready to assume your share? Do so. Hurry. Make haste. It is later than you think.

"Use good metal for water pipes," say plumbing contractors.

Now that the war is over, brass and copper building products are available again, and there is no excuse nowadays for plumbing pipes that get choked up with rust.

When copper water tube and solder-joint fittings are used, there is a good flow of clean, sparkling water for your shower, because copper does not clog with rust and reduce the water pressure.

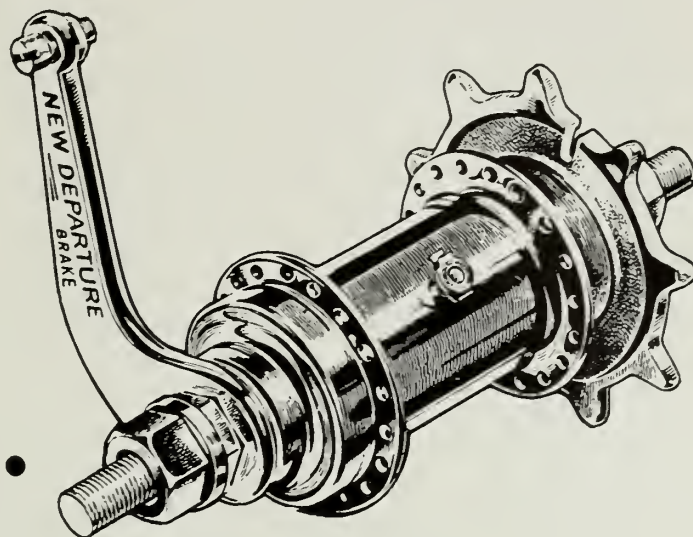

Brass and copper building products are cheaper in the long run, and it is a pleasant surprise to most people to learn that an installation of copper water tube costs little more, if any more, than rustable pipe.
